SMALL EXPECTS FUND OF MILLIONS

Strong Efforts Being Made in Kansas City to Get Men to Work—Superintendent Frankel
On the Ground.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The telegraphers' general strike order apparently has had no effect in this city either yesterday or today. The Western Union officials claimed today that its only effect was to call out seven men in twenty states, from which they had complete returns. Both companies declare that the order has not had the slightest effect in interfering with their work.

The union officials continue to assert that the telegraph companies are hopelessly crippled. The peace makers are making no progress in any direction.

President Small of the International Telegraphers' union, declared today that the telegraphers would have two million dollars for a strike fund within the next two months. It was the first time an officer of the union had expressed an opinion that the struggle would be a protracted one. It indicated that the national leaders appreciate the gravity of the situation, if the rank and file do not, and are making preparations for it.

Mr. Small furthermore observed that talking would not win the strike and that plenty of hard work would be demanded of the officers and members.

Five million dollars is the estimated loss that the Chicago Board of Trade has suffered to date as a result of the strike. Part demoralization of business on 'change has brought forth vehement protests from commission men who have depended on public wires to transact their business, and they assert that they have suffered almost incalculable losses, while commission men who control private wires are virtually monopolizing all the business that is being done during practical suspension of public wire service.

Resorts to the mails to carry on business has proved very unsatisfactory, and thousands of traders in various parts of the country who have been represented on 'change for years have made no effort to continue operations since the wire tie-up.

There to Break the Strike.
Kansas City, Aug. 17.—D. J. Frankel, district superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph company, came here from St. Louis this morning to take charge of the operators' strike.

"I brought several operators with me," Mr. Frankel said, "and more are coming. I expect to have a full force at work here before I leave. In St. Louis we got along excellently. In fact, I left there because my services were no longer needed. We fitted up a dining hall in the Western Union building, and yesterday 176 operators ate dinner there."

Mr. Frankel expects to remain here indefinitely. He is confident that he will succeed in breaking the strike in Kansas City.

The situation otherwise was unchanged this morning. Union pickets at the Western Union and Postal buildings said there were no more operators at work than yesterday. Policemen removed three pickets from the doorway of the Western Union office this morning at the request of the manager, C. W. Brownson.

"They annoyed the operators who passed them going to and from the operating room," Mr. Brownson said.

The strikers took up a position across the street where they commanded a good view of the stairway leading to the operating room.

Foot Painfully Injured.

Joe Pfeiffer, 14-year-old son of Gerlach Pfeiffer, employed at T. K. Barley's machine manufacturing company at 417 West Main street, painfully crushed and lacerated his right foot by catching it in a gasoline engine while at work Saturday afternoon. Dr. E. Nasse dressed the wound and had the young man removed to his home, 321 North Grand avenue.

Gave Him a Purse of $500.

Rev. Fr. D. S. Phelan, pastor and founder of the St. John and James Catholic church in Ferguson, a St. Louis suburb, who recently resigned his pastorate, covering a period of 25 years, commemorated his silver anniversary at a farewell reception Thursday.

A purse of $500 was tendered Fr. Phelan as a token of regard from members of his parish.

Injured Man Doing Well.

William Peters, who had his left foot cut off a week ago Friday at Beaman, and who has been at the city hospital here since under the care of Dr. Wallace Simonds, is getting along nicely.

GREAT DETECTIVE DEAD

ROBERT A. PINKERTON, HEAD OF AGENCY, PASSES AWAY
WHILE AT SEA.

WAS KNOWN ALMOST EVERYWHERE

A Son of Allan Pinkerton—He Took Up the Work During the Civil War in Secret Service.

New York, Aug. 17.—Robert A. Pinkerton, head of the detective agency, died on board the steamship Bremen, August 12, at sea. He was on his way to Germany for his health and was accompanied by Florence Sullivan, the newspaper man. He was 58 years old.

Robert A. Pinkerton was the son of Allan Pinkerton. He was born in Dundee, Ill., and was educated at Notre Dame university. In 1864 his father, Allan Pinkerton, took charge of the United States secret service in the department of the Gulf, with headquarters at New Orleans, under Major General Canby, and in the following year Robert Pinkerton joined the service, remaining in it till the close of the civil war.

In the course of his career Robert Pinkerton managed a great number of important cases, and a multitude of criminals were arrested by or through him.

MR. BOTHWELL WAS ANGRY

St. Louis Newspaper Reporters Barked
Up Wrong Tree.

Hon. J. H. Bothwell returned Friday night from St. Louis, where on Thursday he paid a friendly visit to Judge Ryors, an old friend, who is to name a prosecutor to serve while County Attorney Johnson, of St. Louis county, is being prosecuted under the derelict official act for his alleged failure to close the saloons in his bailiwick on the Sabbath.

Mr. Bothwell is vice chairman of the republican state committee, and some of the St. Louis newspapers at once jumped at the conclusion that his visit to Judge Ryors was to have some one named as prosecutor who is friendly to Mr. Johnson. In fact, the Post-Dispatch stated that the "bosses" were rushing to the rescue of Mr. Johnson.

There was never the slightest foundation for the story. Mr. Bothwell stated to a Democrat-Sentinel reporter Saturday, and his emphatic utterances in relation thereto must have convinced the St. Louis reporters that they were "barking up the wrong tree."

WILL MARRY SOON

Miss Letha Dunn, Formerly of Sedalia, to Wed August 25.

Invitations have been received for the wedding of Miss Letha Dunn and Charles Ellis Shidell, of Kansas City, which takes place Thursday evening, August 23, at Ivanhoe Christian church in that city. Miss Dunn is well known in Sedalia and is a niece of E. E. Barnett, formerly of this city, son of R. W. Barnett.

A reception will be given the happy young couple at the residence of Mr. Barnett, 3706 Garfield avenue, Kansas City, immediately after the wedding.

Will Preach at Smithton.

The Rev. David Roberts, of Sedalia, will preach at Smithton today, both morning and night.

CAN'T EXHUME THE BODY

FEDERAL JUDGE REFUSES PETI-TION OF INSURANCE COMPANY.

THE CELEBRATED CASE OF PERKINS

Payment of Large Policy Rests Upon the Decision Rendered—The Company Will Try Again to Get Desired Permission.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 17.—Judge Smith McPherson, judge of the United States district court for the eastern district of Iowa, today signed a decision here denying the application of the Mutual Life Insurance company for an order to exhume the body of the late Lucian H. Perkins, of Lawrence, Kas. Mr. Perkins held policies in various companies, aggregating $600,000, at the time of his death, which was caused by a fall from the top of his residence.

J. S. Dean, chief counsel for the Mutual Life Insurance company, of New York, is out of the city today and will not return until Monday. J. S. Ferris, one of the assistant counsel, said that he would not advance any opinion as to what would next be done until all the lawyers get together and hold a conference. Another attorney connected with the case, who refused to allow his name to be used in the absence of his chief, said that Judge McPherson's order did not by any means mean that the Mutual Life would pay the $100,000 without further resistance.

The executors of the L. H. Perkins estate have filed a suit in the federal court of Topeka before Judge John C. Pollock demanding the payment of the policy. So long as this is pending the life insurance company need not bring any other action, but may content itself with resisting payment.

Just what effect Judge McPherson's opinion will have on the executors' suit so far as any further attempt to exhume the body is concerned, is not plain at present. It is assumed, however, that the insurance company's lawyers will again ask for an order to do this, their position being stronger now that they are defendants instead of plaintiffs.

KISSED A GIRL CLERK

Incident in an Ohio Street Store the Past Week.

An unusual occurrence happened in a downtown store, recently established, on Ohio street, one day the past week. The manager of the place was seen by one of the lady clerks kissing another female clerk. The "peeper" told the rest of the girls, who held an indignation meeting that same day to decide what action to take.

Some favored striking unless the girl who had been kissed, was discharged. No one was backed with enough nerve to present the grievance to the manager, and now the young ladies are figuring on notifying the parties who are behind the business.

Whether the young ladies are jealous because they were not kissed, one of the ladies employed at the store declined to state.

WAS ROBBED OF $40

Railway Mail Clerk Running on the High Line.

W. H. Hukill, a railway mail clerk running between Sedalia and Paola, Kas., on the high line, was robbed of $40 by some unknown party at his room on East Fifth street some time Friday night. There is a slight clue on which the police are working.

Mr. Hukill received his pay check Friday evening, and after paying a small bill, he placed the remainder of his money in his pocket. When he awoke yesterday morning it was missing. Mr. Hukill lives at Paola, Kas.

Death of Mrs. M. C. Prime.

Mrs. M. C. Prime, aged 24 years, wife of the engineer at the Sedalia Woolen Mills, died of tuberculosis at her home, 308 North Washington avenue, at 3 o'clock Saturday morning. Besides the husband, a young daughter survives. The remains will be shipped to California, Mo., at 10:40 o'clock this morning for interment.

Says Wife Was Unfaithful.

Garnette Moore, through Attorneys Beate & Wilson, Saturday filed suit for divorce from his wife, Clara Moore, in the Pettis county circuit court, alleging infidelity and naming G. W. Shelton, of Kansas City, as co-respondent. They were married at Pleasant Hill on April 27, 1904, and lived together until November 28, 1906.

Probate Court Appointments.

Probate Judge Kennedy Saturday appointed Maud Johnson guardian and curator of Mattie Mae Johnson, a minor. Judge Kennedy also appointed Jessie Bell Steele administratrix of the estate of E. M. Steele, deceased.

WOMAN'S BONES FOUND

THEY WERE BURIED UNDER AN OLD BUILDING AT SHEL-BYVILLE, IND.

RIGHT ARM, BUT HAND IS MISSING

Murder Theory is Advanced, But So Far as Known No Member of Any Family is Missing in That Locality.

Shelbyville, Ind., Aug. 17.—A woman's right arm, minus the hand, covered with stigmata of flesh and attached to the shoulder blade was found buried beneath a floor in a frame building at the rear of the William Lantz general store in Waldron yesterday afternoon by George McCollay, a carpenter, who was lowering the floor of the structure.

The mysterious find, suggestive of the Pearl Bryan decapitation, has set the denizens of Waldron agog with excitement. Hundreds examined the bones, but no solution of the mystery has been offered.

Dr. D. F. Randolph, of Waldron, carefully examined the bones. "By peculiar markings," said the doctor, "I can tell these bones are a part of the body of a female adult. They are the bones of the right arm, and in my opinion have not been removed from a living body longer than two or three weeks."

How the bones were secreted or the motive in doing so is not known. The building was carefully searched after the find, and the railroads and cemeteries in the near vicinity were examined by searching parties, but no trace of the remaining portion of the body could be found. It is stated positively, however, that no human being could undergo an operation for the removal of the bones of the arm and shoulder blade and live.

The murder theory has been advanced, but no member of any local family is missing and it is believed the arm was secreted by parties traveling on the Big Four railroad, which runs within 30 feet of the structure where the ghastly find was made.

The building is a low frame structure, and the spot where the bones were found could only be reached by raising a board inside.

KILLED BY A TRAIN

Body Was Found Near Pilot Grove
Saturday Morning.

The remains of an unknown man were found one-half mile south of Pilot Grove early Saturday morning, the body being badly mangled, it evidently having been struck by an M. & T. train during Friday night.

The corpse was removed to the town, where an examination of the clothing revealed a Katy identification check that led to the belief that the deceased was John Larkin, who had been employed as an extra gang laborer.

The deceased was about 25 years of age, but as to his past history or place of abode nothing is known.

If no relatives are found, the body will be buried at Pilot Grove.

Two Whopping Tomatoes.

Mrs. D. M. Rodecker, of 1597 South Vermont street, has left with the Democrat-Sentinel two tomatoes of the Ponderosa variety that together weigh exactly four pounds.

Having Delightful Visit.

A postal card from Ernest and James Van Wagner Saturday, sent from Buffalo, N. Y., says that both are having a delightful visit.

END TO THEIR ROMANCE

SECRET WEDDING DISCLOSED
BY THE HUSBAND'S SEC-OND LOVE.

STORY OF THE DISCARDED WIFE

Redman Confessed to Second Woman That He Was Married—Sues for Divorce—Wife Still Believes in Him.

A suit filed at California, Mo., the past week to annul a marriage, written of in Wednesday's Democrat-Sentinel, was referred to as follows in Saturday's Kansas City Journal:

"In spite of all they say; whatever they make him do, I will still believe he loves me."

The speaker was a sad-eyed little woman, and as she stood in the "linea room" at the Hotel Baltimore last night and told of the bitter ending to her short-lived romance, great tears streamed down her cheeks. They bespoke the undying faith in the boy husband who is now suing to have their marriage annulled that he may be free to marry another.

The woman is Daisy Fisher. Her name by marriage is Mrs. William Redman, but she has never, during her few months of married life, borne her husband's name. Miss Fisher, at the time of her marriage to Redman, the 23-year-old son of Dr. S. H. Redman, a wealthy citizen of Tipton, Mo., was employed as a cook in the City hotel of that city. The young people went to the boy's father and confessed their love, but were unable to secure the latter's consent to their marriage.

"I wanted to do what was right," said Mrs. Redman last night. "Will wanted me to elope without speaking to his father, but I refused; then when the father repulsed us I made up my mind to let my heart and love lead me."

So the two went to St. Louis and on January 11 of this year were secretly married under the names of Harry Lee and Ellen Fisher. Miss Fisher's name being Daisy Ellen. From St. Louis Redman went to West Virginia, his father already having tried to compel him to make the visit that he might forget the girl.

Mrs. Redman returned to Tipton and later her husband joined her. He spent much of his time with her, but fearing the wrath of his parents, continued to keep his marriage a secret. According to the statement of the woman they were very happy during their short residence in Tipton, and neither anticipated the events that have later developed.

Last spring Mrs. Redman came to Kansas City with her sister, Miss Althea Fisher, and on June 2 both went to work at the Hotel Baltimore.

Recently announcement was made in Tipton of the engagement of Redman to Miss Edith Wood, daughter of a prosperous farmer. It is said the two were sweethearts during the time Redman was courting Miss Fisher. The day came for the wedding and Redman broke down, saying that he already had a wife in Kansas City. Suit was brought in the Monticau county court at California, Mo., to annul the marriage on the ground that fictitious names were used. The hearing will be next month. It is said that if the marriage is annulled, Miss Wood will consent to forgive and forget and will become Mrs. Redman.

Mrs. Redman, or, as she is known generally, Miss Fisher, has employed lawyers and will fight the suit to the end. Evidently for fear of injuring her husband, she declined to state her suppositions as to why he had allowed the suit to be brought. Her conversation, however, leads to the belief that she blames her father-in-law with the whole affair.

"Just say I don't blame Will," she kept repeating between sobs. "He would come back to me if he could." Mrs. Redman's aged mother and a brother live at Atkinville, a little town a few miles from Tipton. She and her sister have rooms in the Baltimore annex, with other employees of the hotel.

Social Was a Success.

The lawn social given by the ladies of Trinity Lutheran church at the home of John Brandt the past week was well attended and greatly enjoyed by all present. The musical feature of the entertainment was especially good and greatly appreciated.

Third Annual Picnic.

The third annual old settlers' picnic will be held in D. H. Reavis' grove, ten miles west of Sedalia and six miles southwest of Lamonte, on Tuesday, August 27.

Music will be furnished by the Camp Branch band, and a good program will be arranged for the entertainment of all who may attend. Bring your baskets well filled and pass a pleasant day.

To Paint Park Pavillion.

The members of the Liberty park board are making arrangements to have the pavillion at the park repainted. The matter will probably be brought up at the next regular meeting of the board.

END OF A STRANGE LOVE

NEWSPAPER WRITER WHO DE-SERVED WIFE AND CHIL-DREN SUICIDES.

WAS INFATUATED WITH ANOTHER

After Pleading With Her for Reconciliation and Being Refused He Ended All With Dose of Laudanum.

Cincinnati, Aug. 17.—John E. Owens, a writer and traveler, whose infatuation for Mrs. Bonnie Tucker, the former wife of a politician of this city, led him to desert his wife and home and travel with her around the country, committed suicide as a rooming house in this city late yesterday. Owens ended his life by swallowing laudanum after he had a brief interview with Mrs. Tucker in which he pleaded for a reconciliation and was refused.

Owens' death was the climax of his sensational escapade with Mrs. Tucker in the City of Mexico months ago. After the two had reached the Mexican capital Owens caused a sensation by appealing to the police to locate his "wife," who had left him, supposedly on account of his insane jealousy.

A few days later she went to Oklahoma City. On the same train was Frank Ballard, an American hotel keeper of the City of Mexico, at whose hotel the couple had stopped. Owens started in pursuit, saying Ballard had induced Mrs. Tucker to leave him. He wired the police authorities to arrest the couple on a charge of smuggling.

Owens was himself arrested for threatening the woman. Mrs. Tucker and Ballard were released. Owens finally got out of jail and followed the object of his infatuation. He secured a reconciliation, but they again separated.

LOVERS OF LONG AGO

Were United in Wedlock by the Rev.
Clagett Saturday.

Edward L. Kent, a well-known and popular Missouri Pacific machinist, and Miss Cleo Leiter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Leiter, of 1423 South Kentucky avenue, were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. D. M. Clagett, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian church, at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

Immediate relatives and a few intimate friends were the only attendants at the wedding. The bride couple left over the Missouri Pacific at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon for a few days' visit in St. Louis, after which they will return here and go to housekeeping at 404 West Sixth street.

Mr. Kent has been employed as machinist at the shops for a long number of years, and is one of the city's best liked and genial young men, with a wide circle of friends, who will take pleasure in wishing him and his most estimable young wife a long and happy married life.

Inquest Is Postponed.

Coroner Tittsworth Saturday evening postponed the inquest to identify the remains of the boy found by a Katy train crew Thursday night until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, on account of the crew being absent from the city.

No additional light has been thrown on the subject and it is possible that the identity of the child will never be revealed.

STORY OF OLD SEDALIA

HAPPENING OF LONG AGO RE-CALLED BY RECENT POLI-TICAL CONVENTION.

A CANDIDATE FOR CHIEF JUSTICE

Once Lived in This City—One of the Funny Things That Occurred
When He Was City Attorney
—A Reminiscence.

Recently the republicans of the new state of Oklahoma held a state convention at Tulsa. It was very hot weather at the time and the convention was also hot, hence the following story is related, trusting that the readers will not consider it too hot for the columns of the Democrat-Sentinel.

W. W. S. Snoddy, a former Sedalian, was nominated for supreme judge. He is the hero of this story.

It was in 1868, while Bacon Montgomery was mayor of Sedalia, W. W. S. Snoddy, city attorney; W. P. Jackson, city marshal, and W. C. Weiler, esq., still a respected citizen of this city, was president of the board of aldermen.

At that time there resided in Sedalia Richard Penny. He was a sort of a photographer, a man around town with no particular employment, but I think, later posed as a lawyer. He was a talented fellow and an old soldier of the civil war. "Dick," as he was familiarly called, wrote for the local papers some and indited poetry occasionally, and what he "ground out" averaged up well as such effusions go. He was given to his cups occasionally—as were many other Sedalians forty years ago. Dick was endowed with one characteristic that always made him fast friends—he, with his eccentricities, was a polished gentleman.

At that day Ed Clegg kept a very genteel saloon at No. 116 East Main street. Clegg was a well-to-do German, whose friends were legion. His place was quite a favorite resort for the convivial spirits which flocked in Sedalia at that period.

On the night of July 3, 1868, Bacon Montgomery, mayor; W. W. S. Snoddy, city attorney; Captain L. L. Bridges, lawyer, and Richard Penny, a man-about-town, met about 10 o'clock at Clegg's buffet. They were soon seated about a round table. Cards were called for, also the drinks.

The party were celebrating the anniversary of American independence and the freedom of all mankind to do as they pleased on America's soil.

The game went on and on, and drinks were served and served and served.

After midnight, on sure-enough Fourth of July, the game went on and the drinks went down until the party became hilarious. None more than Snoddy, who, to use a favorite expression of Captain Bridges, was

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS.

The election of Joseph F. Johnston to succeed Senator Pettus, of Alabama, is an interesting addition to the small company of democratic senators who next December will find seats on the minority side. The newcomers, besides Senator Johnston, will be John H. Bankhead, succeeding Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama; Jefferson Davis, succeeding James H. Berry, of Arkansas; Robert L. Taylor, succeeding Edward W.
Carmack, of Tennessee, and Thomas
H. Paynter, succeeding Joseph C. S.
Blackburn, of Kentucky. John Sharp Williams, recently chosen at the Mississippi primary to succeed Hernando De Soto Money, will not take his seat until March 4, 1911.

Besides those succeeded by Democrats, there were four other democrats—Clark, of Montana; Garin, of Oregon; Dubois, of Idaho, and Patterson, of Colorado, who will be succeeded by republicans.

Bankhead, of Alabama, is the only new democratic senator to take his seat in the sixtieth congress who comes straight from the house to the senate. Senator Johnston comes from private life, though he is not without experience as a public servant, having been governor of Alabama from 1896 to 1900. He is a lawyer by profession, but is better known as a financier. He is the first president of the Sloss Iron and Steel company, and is credited with having accumulated a large fortune in late years.

Senator Davis was last in the public service as governor of Arkansas.
Senator Paynter comes from the Kentucky circuit bench, to which he was elected, after having served three terms in the house. Senator Taylor served one term in the house nearly a quarter of a century ago, and subsequently was three times
governor of Tennessee.

The deaths of Senators Morgan and Pettus, and the retirement of Senators Berry, Blackburn and Carmack, leading or veteran democrats, leave important committee vacancies on the minority side. The more important of these committee places, according to ancient usage, will be left to the pick of the holdover senators on the minority side.

AN ILLUSTRATION.

Because they were dissatisfied with the hours of work and the disciplinary regulations imposed by the city government, the drivers of the New York street cleaning department went on a strike. Although the men returned to work tons of garbage were rotting under an August sun, menacing life and health while they were out.

A very pretty object lesson in municipal ownership, is it not? says the New York World. Suppose the city of New York, in addition to sweeping, its own streets and removing its own garbage, also owned and operated its own street cars, its own gas plant and its own telephone system.

Suppose all these public employes were organized, as they would be, atter the manner of the drivers, and suppose these organizations were affiliated, as they would be, what would be the situation?

New York would be the object slave of its hired servants. They could stop every car wheel, as the drivers stopped every car wheel.
They could leave the city in darkness by night and terror by day. They could make it all but impossible for one part of New York to communicate its needs and its calamities to another part. They could tie up the business, the industry, the activity of the metropolis and hold the city government in a state of siege.

What redress would the people have? What means of self-protection?
What means of self-help? If the city government could not move garbage when there was a strike of employes, how could it move street cars, supply gas or operate telephones?
This picture of possibilities is not overdrawn. Similar things have happened in other cities where the government operated public utilities.
New York would be more vulnerable than any European capital, for here public employes consider themselves the masters, not the servants of the people. They regard themselves as vested with full power to fix their own wages, their own hours of employment, and to say what restraints may be imposed upon them.

Whoever has been dazzled by the definitely drawn pictures of the millennium of municipal ownership is invited to contemplate the loathsome heaps of festering garbage that was on every hand during the recent strike.
Here was a concrete case of municipal operation under average municipal government in the United States.

ARMY DISORGANIZED.

Commenting on the recent dismissal of Colonel Ayres from the army
the Houston (Texas) Post remarks:
"From the rise to power of General Corbin, during the McKinley administration, the official roster of the army has undergone many changes due to executive favoritism and the intrigues of the war department's bureaucrats."

"Many soldiers who served with distinction in the civil and Indian wars, as well as in the Spanish-American war, were summarily retired or denied promotion in order that rank fakers like Leonard Wood might be advanced beyond their merits.
Soldiers who resented such ill treatment, as Schley resented it in the navy, have been given the 'hot end of the poker,' to use modern vernacular, and their efforts to obtain justice have not availed, because the power that dominated the war department has likewise dominated the legislative department of the government."

The case of General Miles is also memorable. The army has been so completely demoralized by the military quackery of Roosevelt and his satellites that it needs a complete reorganization.

Little Child Dies at Hospital.

The 7-year-old son of Dr. Bowles, of Tipton, who was operated upon for an abscess in one ear in this city the middle of last week, died here at 11 o'clock last night. The body will be shipped to Tipton for burial.
Prior to the operation the lad had been unconscious for thirty-six hours and his recovery from the start was considered very doubtful by the attending physicians.

eph Willie. The divorce was not granted and after living together for two years Willie and Mrs. Givens were summoned before the court.
Willie was indicted and Mrs. Givens fearing a similar fate left for parts unknown.

Mr. Givens is not satisfied that she should escape and has ridden on his bicycle all the way from Seattle to Bucyrus to locate his errant spouse and turn her over to the authorities for punishment.

BARBER'S FINGER MARKS

Betrayed Him as the Sender of a Black Hand Letter.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 17.—Traced by finger prints, discernible in an ink impression of a Black Hand signal to a letter received by Fr. Foretti, of St.
Anthony's Roman Catholic church, in which the priest is threatened with death unless he turns over $800 by September 1, Michael Venzio, an Italian barber, was arrested as the writer of the letter.

The police rounded up several Italians and took impressions of their fingers. Edward Schwartz, who is at the head of the Bertillon bureau, in Newark, declared the impression in the letter corresponded with the impression of Venzio's fingers taken by the police, and on this evidence a conviction is hoped for.

BOY OF SIXTEEN

Falls From a Mow and Then Reduces His Own Fractures.

Piqua, Ohio, Aug. 17.—When Scott
Hunt, aged 16 years, fell from a barn mow and broke both bones of his right arm he increased the number of his fractures to five.

Two years ago two of his ribs were broken by a kick of a horse. One of the bones of his right arm already had been broken. In addition he was seriously burned when a small child with the assistance of two men the boy set the broken bones and placed them properly in splints. His father is a doctor.

CHAOS IN A FERRY HOUSE.

Young Man Got Even with Crowd Which Pushed Him Aside.

A big crowd was waiting in the St.
George ferry house, Staten Island, for the New York boat, all more or less bored and listless, when a young man came in and wandered idly about the room, says the New York Press. He finally stopped in front of a penny-in-the-slot phonograph machine and dropped in a coin. A lively tune immediately started up. The crowd woke up and several loafers collected in front of the machine in order to enjoy the strains more thoroughly.
More of the bored ones joined the collection till, to the surprise of the young man, he was elbowed out of the way and stood on the outside. He stared at the crowd in some resentment. Then a thought seemed to strike him. He fished up a bunch of change from his pockets and walking around the room, calmly proceeded to start every machine in the place going, including two banjo-picking machines. The bedlam that ensued was indescribable. With a grin of triumph the youth left the scene of his villany and went outside to light a cigarette.
He had his revenge.

Joined the Dead at Their Meal.

In the medical press is a story of a man who believed that he was dead and who for that reason refused to take any nourishment. "How can the dead eat and drink?" he asked, when food was pressed upon him. It was obvious that unless something were done to bring him to his senses the delusion must soon become actuality; he would die of starvation. The strange ruse was tried. Half a dozen attendants, draped in ghostly white, crept silently in single file into the room adjoining his, and with the door open, sat down where he could see them to a hearty meal. "Here, who are these people?" inquired the patient. "Dead men," answered the doctor. "What!" said the other. "Do dead men eat?" "To be sure they do, as you see for yourself," was the answer. "Well," said the corpse, "if that is so, I'll join them, for I'm starving." The spell was broken, and he sat down and ate like 40 famished men.

KILLED WHILE SWEEPING

Lightning Struck a Woman at House-work in Glencoe, Mo.

Glencoe, Mo., Aug. 17.—Mrs. John McKinnon, 50 years old, while sweeping the floor of her parlor, was struck by lightning and killed Friday.

A broom was clutched in her hands and it required five men to remove it. There had been a heavy rainfall, accompanied by thunder. Mrs. McKinnon had the front door open.

Neighbors saw a ball of fire, they say, leap from the sky and enter the front window of the McKinnon house. Summoned by the screams of the McKinnon children, they went to the house and found Mrs. McKinnon dead on the floor.

Mrs. McKinnon was the mother of seven children. Her husband was employed in a cement works.

"bigger than a skinned horse, drunk or sober."

The fellows went to scuffling—pulling and hauling each other about, tearing each other's clothing until they were nearly nude.

At the first appearance of sunrise on the eastern horizon, on the Fourth of July, the parties to this jamboree all left for their respective homes, very much the worse for wearing apparel, while Snoddy figured on the street in shoes, socks and a small remnant of a shirt collar about his neck, headed south on Ohio street, he residing between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets on Ohio at that time.

Sedalia was a small town at that time and such a riotous proceeding could not be kept quiet, and it was soon noised around town.

A few days thereafter someone, the writer cannot remember who, swore out a warrant for the arrest of the whole party.

The day of trial came and Judge Chas. P. Townsley, afterward circuit judge, acted as city attorney to prosecute the revelers, while A. C. Scott, an impecunious but very bright lawyer, defended his honor, the mayor, and his co-defendants.

A jury was called for by the defense, summoned by Marshal Jackson—good men and true.

I do not remember the names of the jurors, except one, and that was Richard Hulland, an Englishman and a member of the board of aldermen. W. C. Weiler, by virtue of his office in the absence of the mayor, presided as judge of the city court.

The first witness examined was Ed Clegg, the saloonist. But little, if anything, was secured from him to convict the marauders. The next witness was a policeman, who found Snoddy going home in very brief attire. A number of other witnesses were put upon the stand—put there because they knew nothing.

Lawyer Scott created a world of amusement for the crowded room by his cool and calculating manner, peculiar to himself and himself only, in cross-questioning the witnesses for the city.

The trial consumed the largest part of the afternoon, and it was intensely hot. It was about 5 o'clock when Hulland, one of the jurors and a sort of a bell-wether among them, stood up in the jury box and addressed the court jurors and audience as follows:

"May it please the court, gentlemen of the jury and citizens, there is no cause of action sustained, and I move you that this case be dismissed and the defendants be discharged from custody, to go hence without day—yes, all of you fellows in favor of that, say I!"

The jury and audience all came out with a strong volley of "I's." No negative vote as taken. Hulland and the balance of the jury grabbed their hats and walked out of court, followed by the defendants, the lawyers and the crowd. The next session of that august body, jury, lawyers, mayor, city attorney and witnesses was held in Clegg's saloon, where the glasses rattled by the right of the statutes of the state of Missouri, so made and provided.

That was the last of the case that grew out of a mid-summer night's frolic.

And the participants—they are dead and scattered.

Snoddy went from here to Kansas and resided at Medicine Lodge for a number of years. When he went to Oklahoma the writer is in ignorance. Judge Townsley left here many years ago and published a paper at Great Bend, Kansas, for a long time. He died less than a month ago.

Bacon Montgomery met a tragic fate in old Mexico twenty years ago, about.

Ed Clegg suicided in the cellar of 116 East Main street thirty or more years since.

R. Hulland died in England while on a visit there and was buried there.

W. C. Weiler is the only one left in Sedalia.

Captain Bridges died in Washington, D. C., a few years ago.

Richard Penny when last heard from was in the Soldiers' home at Danville, Ill. and is, by his friends, believed to be dead.

The court was held up stairs in the building now occupied by George Groshans as a grocery, at No. 109 East Main street.—J. W. G.

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Latest Wire Quotations on Grain, Live Stock and Local Products.

The Grain Quotations.

The following quotations are furnished the Democrat-Sentinel at 3 p. m. each day by B. C. Christopher & Co., grain merchants, Board of Trade building, Kansas City, Mo.:

Chicago September wheat sold up 3/8c to 85 1/2c early and December wheat made the same advance to 90 1/2c. Prices quickly turned down again, however, September wheat dropping to 84 1/4c and December to 89 1/4c. There was a partial recovery in the final dealings and the close on September was 84 1/2c, off 5/8c for the day. The December close, 89 3/4c, showed 1/4c net less. Kansas City wheat prices started out fractionally lower, then sold up above Friday's close for awhile, later following the decline in Chicago. December wheat rose to 82c, or 1/4c above the previous day's close, fell to 82 1/2c and closed at 82 3/4c, off 1/4c for the day.

Live Stock Quotations.

The following quotations are furnished the Democrat-Sentinel at 3 p. m. each day by Pruehl-McMullen Live Stock Commission Co., stock yards, Kansas City, Mo.:

Receipts of cattle in Kansas City today were 1,000; in Chicago, 800; at the five western markets, 3,200. Nearly all the cattle received here were on through billing. A few cows and stock heifers sold at steady prices. The market was nominally steady.

Prices of the best corn fat steers declined no more than 10 cents. Several loads sold at $7 to $7.10, and one 1,530-pound steer brought $7.35. Partly corn fat steers declined 15 to 20 cents and grass fat grades 25 to 40 cents. The larger part of the offerings were western grass fat steers. Some Greenwood county, Kas., steers, "spur" brand, sold at $5.65, and wintered westerns, partly corn fat, at $6. Most of the grass fat grades brought $4.60 to $5.25.

Cows and heifers declined 50 cents in extreme cases, though the bulk of the offerings were quoted no more than 20 to 35 cents lower. Corn fat cows and heifers were 15 cents lower and in good demand for shipment. Grass fat grades were plentiful. The movement from Western Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas is in full swing. Veal calves declined 25 to 50 cents. Receipts for the week were close to 10,000.

On the quarantine side receipts were close to 17,500 and about 3,500 larger than last week. Prices were 20 to 30 cents lower on both cows and steers. The best steers brought $4.55.

Receipts of hogs in Kansas City today were 3,000. Trade was active for a while at the start, with shipper buyers doing most of the trading at strong prices. The top price was $6.15 and bulk of sales $5.95 to $6.10.

Prices of hogs today were 10 to 15 cents lower than a week ago and 15 to 20 cents lower than Monday and Tuesday, the high days of the week.

MEN FELL 400 FEET

A Defect in Machinery Caused Pennsylvania Mine Accident.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 17.—Owing to what is said to have been a defect in the machinery, a cage containing eight miners, who were preparing to descend to their work in a mine at Shannon today, started upward instead of going down, and, rising eighty feet to the top of the tangle, turned over, throwing the men out. Five of them dropped to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of more than 400 feet, and were killed. The others succeeded in catching hold of the timber of the tangle and escaped with slight injuries.

REBATES ARE DANGEROUS

Interstate Commerce Law to Be Obeyed, Says Railroad Man.

New York, Aug. 17.—The giving of rebates by railroads is a thing of the past, according to Francis La Ba, freight traffic manager of the New York Central lines east of Buffalo. He made this statement when asked in regard to a prevalent impression that certain roads were still favoring big shippers secretly in disobedience of the interstate commerce law.

"Of course, I speak authoritatively only for the New York Central," said Mr. La Ba. "In behalf of that line I can say positively that rebate giving, either directly or indirectly, is not only a thing of the past, but has been so for three or four years. It is my personal belief, moreover, that this same statement applies practically to all the big roads.

"To give rebates in the face of the Hepburn amendment to the interstate commerce law would be suicidal. The amendment has revolutionized conditions in the commercial world of this country. It is now impossible for any large shipper, corporation or otherwise, to obtain lower rates than those accorded to the smallest customer of any road. The law is plain, and it must be, and is being obeyed."

It's a Cracking Good Town.

Dan O'Donovan, a former Sedalia, but now manager of the street railway at Douglas, Arizona, sends the Democrat-Sentinel a copy of the Daily International-American, published there, that shows Douglas to be a crackerjack town in the truest sense of the term.

Douglas has ten miles of street railway and an equal number of miles of cement sidewalks. It has two daily and two weekly newspapers, and one of its smelters employs 1,250 men.

Besides Mr. O'Donovan, Harry Luch and several other Sedalians are now living there.

Licensed to Wed.

A marriage license was issued Saturday to Ross Lee and Maud Hill, both of Houstonia.

Licenses were also issued to the following:

Edward L. Kent and Cleo Leiter, both of Sedalia.

Pastor Was Surprised.

The Rev. S. M. Leshar, pastor of Trinity English Lutheran church, and his good wife, were surprised Friday afternoon by about fifty members of the church, who proceeded in a body to the pastor's home, carrying baskets well filled with substantial and delicacies, and a truly delightful time was had.

Will Take a Rest Now.

Al Baumgartner, the tonsorial artist, who last week sold his interest in the barber firm of Baumgartner & Johnson to his partner, L. E. Johnson, retired last night, and early this week he and Mrs. Baumgartner will go to Excelsior Springs for a sojourn of several days. Mr. Baumgartner will rest for some time before deciding upon his plans for the future.

Will Leave Pettis County.

George Mittl, son of Matt Mittl, of one mile northeast of the city, and brother-in-law, Will Hastings, of Kansas City, have both taken up claims in New Mexico and Saturday were looking for teams and wagons preparatory to leaving for that country. They will load their car at Kansas City the last of the week and leave for their new home.

Returned From the Assembly.

Rev. Frank Y. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist church, returned Saturday morning from attending the Baptist assembly at Warrensburg, but Mrs. Campbell remained for a visit in the Quarry City. The next annual meeting will also be held at Pertle Springs, the date being July 19 to 26, 1908.

Woman Lost $150 Diamond.

Mrs. W. E. Tyler, wife of the Missouri Pacific freight agent and yardmaster, lost a $150 diamond ring somewhere in the residence part of town last Thursday. A reward of $25 has been offered for the return of the jewelry.

THE WEATHER.

Sunday fair; slight temperature changes.

WAS BORN IN SEDALIA

Miss Cammie Cahill, Who Was Married in St. Louis.

Miss Cammie Cahill, a Sedalia girl, born and reared in this city, and a sister of Mrs. C. H. Heynen, was united in marriage in St. Louis to Carl F. Boester, of that place, at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Williams at a Baptist church there. The bride couple will reside in the Mound City.

Mr. Boester holds a good position with the civil service commission. His bride left Sedalia about two years ago for St. Louis, where she has resided since.

Many friends will join in extending congratulations.

"Red" Davis Injured.

Red Davis met with a severe accident yesterday afternoon while in the preliminary practice, says Friday's Topeka Journal.

A high fly ball hit him on the left cheek bone and lit with enough force to knock him to the ground.

Davis' cheek bled profusely, but he continued in the game long enough to save it for the locals. His hit made an even hundred for him this season and he is the first one of the locals to get that number.

TO BE SEEN IN SEDALIA

ALL OF THE SHUBERT ATTRACTIONS WILL DURING COMING SEASON.

DR. WOOD HAS BEEN SO ADVISED

If What General Press Representative Says Is Carried Out to the Letter, We'll See Some Fine Shows Here.

The Shubert attractions were somewhat limited last season, but having increased the number from about forty to nearly one hundred productions for the coming season the patrons of Wood's opera house will have an opportunity to witness the best line of attractions they have ever seen before. The lovers of drama and music can take their choice or go to see and hear both. Wood's opera house is now being prepared for the opening in the early part of September. The following letter is explanatory:

Sam S. and Lee Shubert, Incorporated, New York, Aug. 7, 1907.—Dr. H. W. Wood, Wood's Opera House, Sedalia, Mo. Dear Sir: A news story of vital interest to the theatregoing public of all America is the fact that for the first time in three years the entire Shubert list of attractions will go to the Pacific coast, this management having secured houses covering every state and every city, town and hamlet where the best in dramatic and musical production is patronized. Unquestionably the extension of territory opens a new era in the history of high-class amusements, and your publication of the fact, with such editorial comment as you may care to make, will be appreciated.

Among the notables whose territory has been limited, and who will now be seen everywhere, are E. H. Southern, Julia Marlowe, Henry Miller, Margaret Anglin, Virginia Harned, Cecelia Loftus, Lawrence D'Orsay, Digby Bell, Mary Manning, Henry Woodruff, Clara Bloodgood, Thos. W. Ross, Richard Golden, Minnie DePrece, Louis Mann, Charles Bigelow, Jefferson De Angelis, Blanche Ring, Alex Carr, Louise Gunning, Eddie Foy, James T. Powers, DeWolf Hopper, Marguerite Clark, Lew Fields, Chas. J. Ross and Mabel Panton, and many others of the Shubert staff.

By the same good fortune all the Belasco and Elske stars will play the extended territory, including Blanche Bates, David Warfield, Frances Stern, Brendon Tynan, Frank Keenan, of the Belasco staff, and Mrs. Elske, Bertha Kalich and George Adliss, of the Elske staff.

Full announcement of the plays and new developments will be sent you in the weekly Shubert Bulletin. Yours very truly,—Henry Edward Warner, General Press Representative.

A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Vehicle of Young People Out Driving Collides With Another Team.

An accident which might have been more serious than fortunately it turned out to be, occurred at Sixth and Osage streets last night about 9:15 o'clock. An outfit driven by Jack Mayes and Arthur Yuntz, who were accompanied by the Misses Alcorn, collided with Mr. Katzenstein's vehicle. The force of the collision was so great that the occupants of both vehicles were thrown out. Mr. Mayes is said to have been the only person injured and he very slightly, but all received a severe shaking up.

Mr. Katzenstein's rig suffered the most, being broken so badly that it was practically rendered useless. The collision was caused, it is said, by the horse driven by Mayes and Yuntz becoming unmanageable.

"Herb" Jumped His Contract.

Old Herb Stoner, who caught for Sedalia a few years ago, is now catching in an independent team in Chicago. Herb was with Louisville in the spring, but jumped his contract.

DID NOT LOOSE CONTRACT

Card From the Secretary of the Huston Transfer Co.

To the Democrat-Sentinel.
In last Sunday's issue you credit the Savage Transfer Co. with having the contract for hauling the scenery and baggage for the New Sedalia theatre for next season. The Huston Transfer Co. has had this contract, still hold it, and, according to Mr. George Olendorf, will continue to hold it as long as they give the satisfaction they have in the past. Hoping you will give this the same publicity as the other. Sincerely yours—Jack Devlin, Secretary and Treasurer of the Huston Transfer Co.
The Democrat-Sentinel's information in the premises was gleaned from Mr. George Hall, business manager of the New Sedalia theatre, but Mr. Devlin's card is cheerfully given publicity.

A Disgrace to Sedalia.

The West Fourth street paving, especially in the block between Ohio and Osage streets, is a disgrace to any civilized community.

The summer is passing rapidly without anything bordering on repairs being accomplished, but it will soon be so that work of this character cannot be done, and then we'll likely hear of many improvements and repairs to be made "as soon as the weather permits."

We, the undersigned, having disposed of our entire output of coke for this season to the Stanley Coal Co., hereby notify our former customers that they can buy coke only through the Stanley Coal Co.—Sedalia Light and Traction Co.

BASEBALL AT SMITHTON

Saturday Afternoon the Local Club Defeated Otterville, 7 to 6.

The Smithton ball club defeated Otterville on the Smithton grounds Saturday afternoon by a score of 7 to 6. Eleven innings were required to play the game. Some of Smithton's regular men being absent accounts for the closeness of the score.

Batteries—Smithton, Harris and Hotseapiller; Otterville, Woolery and Fairfax.

The game between Smithton and Concordia that was intended to be played August 22 has been postponed to a later date.

COOKS HIS OWN FOOD

But He Starves His Wife in the Same House.

Bryan, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Charles F. Struble, a leading farmer near here, is defendant in a suit for alimony brought by his wife, and he is suing her parents for $5,000 for alienation of her affections.

Mrs. Struble charges that her husband refused to provide her with food and clothing. She says they still reside in the same house; that her husband provides food for himself and does his own cooking, but refuses to furnish her with anything to eat. He keeps the foodstuffs under lock and key, and she says is attempting to starve her from their home.

Mrs. Struble recently obtained an order in the probate court restraining her husband from doing her bodily injury.

Miss Everetts Has New Position.

Miss Addie Everetts, one of the Queen City's most accomplished and cultured young ladies, and for over a year employed at the exchange of the Bell Telephone company, has resigned, effective as soon as she can be relieved, to accept the position of clerk under F. E. Gibbons, at the Western Union telegraph office.

Miss Everetts is one of the most popular of the city's young ladies, always industrious, and is in every respect perfectly competent to fill the position, which her many friends are glad to see her accept.

Miss Slagle's House Party.

Miss Clara Slagle, daughter of W. M. Slagle, is giving a house party, having for her guests Miss Francis Spicer, of Kansas City, and Miss Hortense and Helen Scott, of Atchison, Kas., whose father was for four years pastor of the Epworth M. E. church. Miss Clara will accompany Miss Francis on her way home, for a two weeks' visit in Kansas City.

Stole Grips From Station.

A man known as "Happy Hooligan," alias "Bill" Bell, was arrested by Special Officer N. P. Kemp, of the Missouri Pacific, at Jefferson City Friday, charged with stealing grips from the station. He was given a jail sentence on two counts in the courts here.

Initiated Into Society.

J. E. Collard, J. Collins and Mrs. Sophia Epperson were initiated into the local assembly of the American Benevolent association Friday night.

You can get the finest ice in the city and the most elegant ice cream and ice cream sodas at Rembaugh's ice cream and soda water parlors. The only up to date place in the city.

REPRIMAND FROM MOTHER

So Upset the Boy That He Ended His Life by Hanging.

Meadville, Pa., Aug. 17.—Raymond, 12-year-old son of Herman Whiteman, farmer, just outside Meadville, hanged himself because his mother scolded him.

While Raymond, his little sister and two younger brothers and his mother were returning from the hay field the children threw dust at each other and were reprimanded.

Raymond went into the barn, climbed up on the hay beam, wrapped a hay fork trip rope three times around his neck and jumped off. His mother found him an hour later hanging so high she could just reach his knees. His neck was broken.

OFFERS REWARD OF $100

A reward of $100 has been offered by the Missouri Pacific engineers and friends of Pat Finch for the return of the horse, buggy and harness, stolen July 6, and for the arrest of the thief. The animal is a light bay horse, seven or eight years old; has a clipped forelock and long runcy neck; looks like a thoroughbred, and is rough shod all round; there is a small white spot size of a quarter near right flank, and a large dimple on right side of neck. Any information send to W. H. Boulton, chief of police, Sedalia, Mo.

Card to Patrons and Public

Having just recently purchased the interest of my partner, Mr. Al Baumgartner, in the barber shop at 509 Ohio street, I desire to join him in thanking all patrons for past courtesies. I trust, in the conduct of the shop in the future, to merit a continuation of your patronage. I invite others to give me a call.—L. E. Johnson.

Will Give a Social.

The ladies of the Second Congregational church will have a social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Rideout, 2000 East Broadway, Tuesday evening, August 20th. If stormy, it will be Thursday evening, August 22. An invitation is extended to all.

Boys Charged With Theft.

Charles Evans, Harry Starkey and John Dillard, boys under age, were arrested by Constable Love Saturday, charged with stealing 500 fish hooks and a thirty-foot seine from J. R. Gearhart. They will be tried in Judge Rickman's court tomorrow.

8c Elite Batiste

This is the same Batiste we had on sale last Thursday at 5c a yard, and because of the rain for practically the whole day, there were those unable to get here, and we offer for the benefit of such, this same batiste at a greater price reduction than ever. Do not confound this with the lawns we had on sale Friday at 3c a yard, which were at that price grand bargains, and resulted in very large sales for the day. These are batistes worth 8c a yard and we've seen no better marked at 10c a yard hereabouts. Beautiful designs, floral, dots, spots and figures. Not over 24 yds. to a customer and no telephone orders accepted. Remember the hours of sale

New York Sport Gossip

ENOX BLOCKOFF

New York, Aug. 17.—Fighting Dick Hyland, the young man who has come out of the west to show eastern light weights how to scrap, is now with his manager, Sammy McClintic, at Stratford, Conn., where he is training for his go with Harlem's pride, Tom Murphy. The famous place of Capt. Bond, where many great lightweights of the past have trained for their biggest battles, is now Highland's quarters. George Decker and Little Johnny Jones are his sparring partners. When Highland goes into the ring with Murphy he will have had the advantage of a full month's training under the most advantageous conditions and ought to show up in tip-top shape. Hyland will get $1,200 for his mix-up with Tommy, win, lose or draw, and as he is said to be saving his mazzuna to buy a "bubble," that sum should help some. Fighting Dick has also contracted to meet Packy McFarland at the inaugural biff show of the Wabash A. C., when the open season for pug begins in Chicago the latter part of next month. According to present plans, he will again return east to meet all comers. Hyland is as much of a curiosity to the sports of upper Broadway as a five-legged mule, inasmuch as he doesn't smoke, chew or get soured. Strong drink has never passed his lips, and the strongest language he has ever been known to use, in the stress of greatest excitement, is "By heck." Moreover, he goes to Sunday school regularly, and would no more miss a sermon than would John D. Rockefeller. Moreover, his record proves that he isn't any picker as a fighter, such as Citrus Squires, whose piety was widely heralded by the press agents.

Terry Martin, the welterweight champion of Yankeeedom, has temporarily retired from the ring and is now taking the rest cure at Milford, Del. It is likely he will be back in the game next winter. Martin has been a hard nut to crack for some of the best men of this weight in the country, and cherishes aspirations for the championship of his division. Pack McFarland and Benny Yanger are scheduled to mix again at the St. Joe A. C., Fort Wayne, Ind., next Tuesday night, and the prospective bout is attracting a great deal of attention in the central west. There has been some trouble about the weight but it is reported that both men have now agreed to 130 pounds at noon. The battle is scheduled for ten rounds, and with two such nifty fighters should go the limit, with a close decision on points at the finish. Malachy Hogan will be the third man in the ring.

Colored boxers have been barred by the Crown Athletic club of Brooklyn, who have announced that hereafter no Africans will be permitted to enter its ring in any capacity. This rule was laid down by Manager John Oliver when some of the members were proposing bouts in which Jack Johnson and Jack Blackburn were to figure.

Tony Caponi, the Chicago middleweight, is trying to pick a fuss with one of the Sullivan twins. He has offered to take on Mike at 148 pounds at 3 o'clock, or Jack at 158 ringside.

Harry McLean, the big twirler of the Cincinnati Reds, has acquired an ambition to break into the limelight, and has offered to take on near-champion Tommy Burns as a starter on his victorious ring career. Larry has made several attempts to arrange matches with big fellows, but complains that he is never given an opportunity to show what he can do with the mitts. The hefty ball tosser is in luck. Lots of men have had their reputations and their mugs spoiled by fighting—one Bill Squires, of Australia, for instance.

The original, name-blown-in every bottle, Cyclone Johnny Thompson, who claims Sycamore, Ill., as his home, complains that a bogus windstorm has been using his cognomen in the west, much to his discredit as a human cyclone. Here's where the government copyright office might come to the aid of fighters by granting them the sole right to their fighting names, infringements to be prosecuted? It is a trifle tough to acquire a reputation as a fighter, only to have it dragged in the mire of defeat by some dub scrapping under false colors.

The Philadelphia clubs will re-open their season in a few weeks, and arrangements are now being made for several promising six-round bouts. Among those said to have applied to the National Athletic club management for matches are Willie Fitzgerald, Harry Lewis, Unk Russell, Young Erne, Tommy O'Toole, Jack Johnson, Frankie Neil, Jack Blackburn, Harry Baker and Kid Stinger. With an aggregation like this to choose from, the Sleepytown biff magnates should be able to arrange some fast and interesting mills.

Case Was Dismissed.

The case of Will Johnson, a negro, charged with disturbing the peace, was dismissed by Prosecuting Attorney Dow in Judge Clark's court Saturday, owing to a defective information.

A WISP OF HAIR

Full of Blood and Other Clews Point to Woman's Murder.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 17.—The finding of portions of a woman's clothing, torn and bloodstained, on the outer end of the Sante Fe docks, and a wisp of hair lying near by full of blood, caused belief that a tragedy had been committed. A woman's garter and a black leather purse were found. In the latter was a note reading:

"Dear May: Meet me tonight, old place, at 8 p. m. If you do not I will fix him and you both. Believe me, I am in dead earnest, so let my little sweetheart come.—B. K."

A line of blood spots led from the place, where evidently there had been a struggle, to the edge of the wharf, and this led to the suspicion that a woman had been murdered and the body thrown into the water. The authorities are investigating.

REGARDING RAILROADS

FINED THE "O" $200 FOR WORKING OPERATOR MORE THAN 8 HOURS.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

The first fine to be assessed against a railroad company under the new eight-hour telegraph law was levied by Justice Crill against the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy at Chillicothe, Mo., Friday, when that corporation was fined $200.

The fine was assessed in the case brought by Prosecuting Attorney Orr, in which it was alleged that the Burlington was violating the eight-hour law by requiring and permitting T. D. Howe, its day operator in Chillicothe, to work more than eight hours out of every twenty-four.

The grounds on which the attorneys for the road moved for dismissal were the following:

"That the defendant had been served by civil process and was not in court by arrest; that the United States congress had legislated on the same subject, which barred the state from regulating the same thing; that the law is in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the United States constitution, in that it denies the defendant the equal protection of the law; that the law contravenes the constitutional provision regarding contracts, impairing the obligation of the company with its employees; that the amount prayed for in the petition or information, $1,000, is in excess of the jurisdiction of justice of the peace, whose jurisdiction can not exceed amounts of over $250; that it is unconstitutional, because it interferes with interstate commerce.

The Burlington promptly appealed.

New Parsons Katy Shops.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway company will soon be in its new shops at Parsons. A switching crew is busy in the yards hauling the machinery and equipment of the old shops to the new.

Thursday last was the heaviest day of this work, and several train loads of machinery and junk were taken over. Flat cars are run to the old buildings and filled with all kinds of machinery. Then it is taken to the new shops and unloaded in the proper places.

In another week the largest part of the shop work will be done in the new buildings. A large force of men is already working there and more are being added. The old buildings will be used for car repairing. The work of preparing them for this business will commence soon.

Been Railroaded 30 Years.

Thirty years ago today Conductor Alonzo Wilson, of the M., K. & T., began his railroad career at Terre Haute, Ind., starting out as a brakeman on the Vandalla road. Later he worked for the Illinois Central and Big Four roads.

In 1892 Mr. Wilson came to Sedalia, and since September 3 of that year he has been running a train on the M., K. & T.

In his thirty years of work never a month has passed that he has not drawn money from a railroad company, and in that entire period he has never had a head-end collision nor a tailender that amounted to anything. Pretty good record.

Wreck On the Wabash.

Wabash train No. 9, due to arrive in Kansas City at 9:40 o'clock, met with an accident at a few minutes after 10 o'clock Friday night one and a half miles west of Randolph, seven miles from Kansas City.

The train was twenty minutes late and in making up time two cars jumped the track. The accident occurred at a sharp curve and the two rear coaches, a chair car and combination buffet and observation car were derailed and turned turtle into a ditch.

The hind wheels of the locomotive tender left the tracks first. Four persons were injured, but none seriously.

Railway Telegrapher "Fired."

The first act of telegraph companies to draw fire from the railroad telegraphers occurred at Omaha Friday when the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad discharged William P. Archibald because, so the commercial telegraphers say, he is a striker from the Western Union.

Officials of the railroad telegraphers' union have been appealed to take the matter up and force the reinstatement of Archibald to his position in the Burlington office.

Called on Strike Troubles.

G. W. Anderson, chairman of the grievance committee of the B. of R. T., on the Missouri Pacific, and W. E. Pearsall, secretary of the B. of R. T. grievance committee on the Iron Mountain railway, with headquarters at Little Rock, Ark., left Saturday afternoon for Denver, Colo., called there by Grand Master Morrissey, of the Trainmen, in regard to the trainmen's strike on the Colorado Southern railway.

Laying 85-Pound Steel Rails.

The Missouri Pacific has forty men at work laying 85-pound steel rails at work between Jefferson City and Cole Junction, a distance of five miles. So far about two miles of the track has been laid.

When the work is completed the "Old Reliable" will have an 85-pound track from St. Louis to the state capital town.

A. Seddon, roadmaster for the Katy at Nevada, was a visitor here Saturday.

O. G. Yancey, a Katy civil engineer, went to Hartsburg Saturday on business.

Roy Walker, a street car conductor, will take in the fair at Buncheon this week.

George Ostman, a Missouri Pacific painter, went to Moberly Saturday to visit.

Dave Riley, Missouri Pacific best, will resume work tomorrow, after a few days' layoff.

N. P. Kemp, special agent for the Missouri Pacific, went east on No. 3 Saturday afternoon.

A. P. Morrison, division engineer for the Missouri Pacific, went to Jefferson City Saturday.

So far during August twenty-four Missouri Pacific employees have been treated at the Katy hospital.

J. M. Chandler, Missouri Pacific roadmaster, went west on the fast mail train Saturday morning.

Engineer J. B. West, of the Missouri Pacific, and family, will leave today for an outing in Colorado.

C. V. Fletcher, a Katy train auditor on the high line, left Saturday for Arcadia, Mo., to visit home folks.

Roy Hinkle, brakeman on the Cannonball, and wife, went to Kansas City Saturday for a few days' visit.

Arthur Sellers, an extra Katy switchman, was doing regular work Saturday in place of a man laying off.

R. E. Francis, assistant engineer for the Missouri Pacific, transacted business on the west end Saturday.

Riley Spillers, a Missouri Pacific brakeman out of Jefferson City, arrived here Saturday to visit home folks.

J. W. McClain, city passenger and ticket agent for the Missouri Pacific, made a business visit at Warsaw Saturday.

A. J. Alexander, superintendent of the Missouri Pacific, returned Saturday from a business visit on the river route.

E. F. O'Herrin and G. A. Smothers, who have been receiving treatment at the Katy hospital, were discharged Saturday.

C. S. Cummings, a Katy brakeman, wife and son, left Saturday for a month's visit with relatives at Fort Scott, Kas.

"Dick" Freeman, formerly a brakeman for the Missouri Pacific, is now doing similar work for the Katy out of this city.

M. J. McGraw, Missouri Pacific master mechanic here, went to St. Louis Saturday to spend the Sabbath with home folks.

George Young, a Missouri Pacific freeman, returned Friday from St. Louis, where he took an examination for promotion to engineer.

There are about thirty locomotives undergoing repairs in the local Missouri Pacific shops, while about ten engines are awaiting repairs.

W. W. Hoffman, trainmaster for the Katy at Smithville, Texas, arrived yesterday morning for a visit with his family, and will depart for his headquarters tomorrow morning on the flyer. He is looking well, feeling well, and will be happy when his wife and children join him in the Lone Star state this fall.

Manager David Webster, of the street car company, Saturday made a number of changes in the running of company motormen and conductors, as follows: "Obe" McCabe, the veteran motomeer, goes from the park line to a daylight run on Grand avenue. Motorman Knutz and Conductor Spillers take the "wing" run on the park line, entering upon work at 11 a. m. Motorman Fritz and Conductor Carver take the park run in the morning and East Sedalia at night. Motormen Anderson and Conductor Young have the Third street run in the morning and Grand avenue run at night.

SEDALIA, MISSOURI, SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 18, 1907. PART TWO

VOL. 1. NO. 220 PRICE FIVE CENTS

WHAT DAY DO YOU FAVOR

AS "SEDALIA DAY" AT THE STATE FAIR, TO BE HELD OCTOBER 5-11.

LET'S SETTLE THE QUESTION EARLY

The Outlook for the Coming Exposition, According to Col. M. V. Carroll, Is the Best in Association's History.

To the Democrat-Sentinel.

I wonder how many of Sedalia's citizens realize that in seven weeks from yesterday the Missouri state fair will open for its seventh annual exhibition? All indications promise for this year much the best fair, both in the magnitude and quality of the exhibits and attendance, in the history of the organization.

Last year our date conflicted with Illinois, and the management over there, backed up by their $65,000 surplus fund and favored by specially low railroad rates, made heavy inroads on the attendance that otherwise would have come here.

This year Illinois' date immediately precedes Missouri's; there is no discrimination in railroad rates, the local press throughout the state has been generously and earnestly exploiting the state fair; the date is particularly favorable; the demands upon Secretary Rippey for catalogues far exceed any previous year—all in all, there is ample warrant for expecting an attendance of many thousands in excess of any former year.

It is no disparagement to say that comparatively few of Sedalia's citizens yet realize the magnitude of this state institution, what it is now doing and will continue to do for the material welfare of this city.

There were actually in attendance last year and registered with the press bureau representatives of thirty of the leading agricultural and live stock papers of America, besides the metropolitan press of our three large cities. All of these sent to their papers full and favorable reports of the fair, their "stories" being woven around Sedalia as the centerpiece, and scarcely a word of unfavorable comment.

Already this year, through the publicity work being done for the fair, the daily live stock papers of a dozen large cities are talking about Sedalia. Reckoned at its worth on a commercial basis, the publicity which the state fair gives to Sedalia could not be purchased for $25,000 a year, and $150,000 would be a conservative estimate of the money expended here each year during and because of the state fair—and this sum will increase rapidly with each succeeding year.

Now, it is pertinent to ask: What is Sedalia doing, and willing to do, for the state fair?

It is not exaggeration to say that, almost without exception, all of our citizens have a kindly feeling for the state fair and want it to be a success. This is a desirable condition—but actions speak more forcibly than sentimental thoughts or utterances.

How many of our 25,000 population will actually attend and pay the admission fee? Every member of the fair board gives his time and efforts without one penny of compensation, and they must depend upon the gate receipts to pay premiums and running expenses. Here is where Sedalia's citizens can emphasize their good will.

The city having the location of the state fair in practically all of the prominent states now designate one day of the annual exhibition as their day, on which almost all lines of business and industry close to permit their owners and employees to attend.

To illustrate: The Iowa state fair opens August 23. Monday, August 25, will be "Des Moines day," and for the past several years, the attendance there on Monday has been but few less than that of "Iowa day" on Thursday.

Minnesota state fair is located midway between the Twin Cities, St. Paul and Minneapolis. Tuesday is "St. Paul day" and Friday is "Minneapolis day." By this means a large and profitable attendance is assured on both of these days.

What about "Sedalia day" at Missouri's state fair? The program being arranged by the fair board will assure as complete an exhibition and as entertaining a program on Monday as on Thursday, and because of the fact that the people out through the state will not have begun arriving in large numbers, our citizens could derive more real pleasure and profit from visiting the fair on Monday than on any day later in the week.

Trade would be so little above the normal on Monday that the proprietors of all lines of business in the city would lose less from closing their places of business than on any other day of fair week, and, with the business houses and factories closed, if Sedalians do their part toward the fair on such a "Sedalia day," there would be 10,000 paid admissions from this city.

This question is now up to our business men, their employees and the citizens generally. Last year, through some misunderstanding, there was lack of uniform action, and many of those business houses which closed at all did so on "Missouri day" (Thursday), when the fair board had about all the crowd it could care for without Sedalia's quota.

The designation of special days will be determined by the fair board at its next meeting, August 30, hence the day desired for "Sedalia day" should be definitely determined by the business men and their employees before that date. And it goes without saying that such united and harmonious action by the business men as will permit and encourage a liberal patronage of the fair by the citizens of Sedalia will redound to her credit and be "bread cast upon the waters."

The following is offered as a suggestion to be published in coupon form to ascertain the wishes of the business men and their employees relative to "Sedalia day" at the fair:

What Day Do You Prefer?

The seventh annual exhibition by the great Missouri state fair will be held here October 5-11 and every day from and including Monday, the 7th, to Friday, the 11th, will be a big day and each will be a special day. In assigning these special days the fair board desires to designate one day as "Sedalia day" and will defer to the wishes of the business men and their employees so far as such preferences can be ascertained. All business men and their employees are urged to fill out the appended coupon and mail or deliver same to this office at once. The preferences, when ascertained, will be announced.

WOMAN FINED FOR KISSING

"Simply Had" to Caress Attractive Street Car Passenger.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 17.—Because she kissed a man, who "looked just too cute," Thursday evening, Mrs. M. Kierney, aged 30, black eyed, rosy and dimpled, was fined $3 and costs by Mayor Coleman, of McKeesport, Friday morning. Mrs. Kierney blushing paid the fine and promised that it would not happen again.

Mrs. Kierney was on a street car, when she saw the "cute" man sitting in a corner. She said she could not resist the temptation to throw her arms around his neck and kiss him.

The man did not take kindly to the caress nor the laughter of the other passengers. He jumped off the car and informed a policeman. Mrs. Kierney was taken to the station house and the man she kissed escaped.

A TOTAL OF 3,216 CARS

WERE REQUIRED TO MOVE SURPLUS PRODUCTS OF MISSOURI IN 1906.

TRAIN OVER THIRTY MILES LONG

Buttermilk Has Been Added by State Labor Bureau as a New Surplus Commodity—Some Figures Are Presented.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 17.—It took a total of 3,216 cars to move the surplus dairy products of Missouri's 114 counties in 1906, figuring at the rate of 40,000 to the car, according to the figures made public today by the state labor bureau. This collection of cars would make a train a little over thirty miles long, allowing for the engines and coal tenders needed to pull it. Going at the rate of twenty miles an hour, it would take an hour and a half for this train to pass any given point.

In money, the surplus dairy products of last year brought $3,996,183, which is a neat gain over the year 1905. Advance sheets from Labor Commissioner Hiller's "red book" for 1907 reveal that Missouri is fast becoming a dairying state, with the Ozark counties coming to the front in a manner so rapid as to attract national attention.

The following table compiled by Supervising Statistician A. P. Edmonston, of the state labor bureau, tells what Missouri did in dairying in 1906:

Butter	11,986,065 lbs.	$2,397,213
Milk & Cream	8,543,991 gals.	1,452,925
Buttermilk	262,369 gals.	26,237
Cheese	634,017 lbs.	33,402
Condensed Milk	175,027 lbs.	17,502
Ice Cream	65,850 gals.	39,510
Total Value		$3,996,183

Buttermilk was added by the state labor bureau as a new surplus commodity, no attempt having ever been made before to secure figures on the same.

Condensed milk is a new commodity for the state, it never having been condensed here before.

No ice cream shipped out of either Kansas City or St. Louis is included, or the figures would have been much larger.

"JUDD" WILL BE MISSED

Cannot Attend Semi-Centennial Up in Michigan.

Special to Democrat-Sentinel.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 17.—An entire week, beginning tomorrow, will be given over to the celebration of Saginaw's semi-centennial. Hundreds of former residents of the city have been invited to share in the festivities.

All the fraternal orders of the state will join in the celebration, handsome cash prizes having been offered for the best drills and parades.

THE LIPTON CUP RACE

First Saturday and the Last Tuesday Afternoon.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The first of the Lipton cup races on Lake Michigan was held this afternoon, all of the leading yachting clubs of the lower lake being represented by entries.

The final races will be held Monday and Tuesday.

SLOWER TRAINS IN MEXICO

New Schedule Goes Into Effect There Tomorrow.

Special to Democrat-Sentinel.

City of Mexico, Aug. 17.—Much slower time will be the rule on all trains operated on the National Lines of Mexico and the Mexican Central roads, under the new schedule which goes into effect tomorrow.

THE RATES FOR JOBBERS

Into Effect Saturday and Will Continue Until Wednesday.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, Aug. 17.—Merchants' rates to New York from trunk line territory went into effect today and will continue to next Wednesday, with the customary fifteen days' return limit.

Jobbers have completed their preparations to welcome the buyers and will show complete lines of fall and winter goods. Buying by the local retail merchants will not begin until the last of the month, so that the jobbers can now give their entire attention to customers from far-away points.

Efforts are being made to arrange for low rate buyers' excursions from Texas, Oklahoma and Mexico.

LITTLE GIRL'S PARTY

It Was in Celebration of Her Sixty Birthday Anniversary

Little Marjorie Slagle, daughter of Katy Brakeman and Mrs. C. O. Slagle, celebrated her sixth birthday anniversary Friday, and in honor of the occasion thirty young friends were entertained at her home, 1120 East Broadway.

Enjoyable games were played, Miss Lillian Holcroft winning the first prize, a statue, while the consolation prize, a vase, went to Miss Hortense Scott, of Atchison, Kas.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and bananas were served, and later the guests returned home, voting the little hostess a charming entertainer.

Wants to Break Record.

J. R. McAllister is quoted as saying that if the state fair board will offer a purse of $1,000 for a pacer to beat the track record of 2:08 1/4 at the seventh annual fair in October he will agree to drive his mare, "Virginia," in 2:04 1/2 or better.

ST. LOUIS'S "LID" LOOSE

Nearly Twice as Many Drunks This Year as Last.

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—The annual report of the board of police commissioners, which will be ready for distribution in a few days, will show anything except improvement on account of the "lid." In 1906, 2,945 drunks were taken into custody, and the report shows 6,363 for 1907.

According to the figures in the report there is little need to expect a three million dollar police force as had been hoped for in some quarters. It shows that in 1906 the expenses were $1,625,321.79 and for 1907, $1,668,918.66. For the fiscal year ended April, 1908, the board expects to use $1,859,841.31. This covers every branch of the department.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS' WORK

DR. G. L. SHEPARD, CO. SUPT., NO. 25.

This week we give the conclusion of the article by Prof. Ira M. Price on "How the Lessons Are Selected."

Next week we shall give a summary of answer to our question, "What are five essential points in conducting a Sunday school?"

"How the Lessons Are Selected." (Concluded from Last Week.)

When the committee meets at the appointed hour, the chairman calls to order, reads a portion of Scripture and leads in prayer. Immediately thereafter the minutes of the preceding meeting are read and approved. He calls for a report of a sub-committee, for example, on the New Testament. This sub-committee has outlined a course of study for one year, and a typewritten copy is set before the whole committee. The chairman says, "Shall we proceed according to our usual method?" If there is no dissent the chairman reads the subject of the first lesson, of the second lesson, and then right through to the end of the year, and we take a bird's-eye view of the whole course. Often lessons are too frequent, too long, too many or too few in the period under consideration. After this glance at the year's work the chairman reads the subject of the first lesson, and asks if that theme is all right. We take the passages of Scripture which are assigned for the lesson, for printing, for memory verses, for the Golden Text, and they are carefully examined by every member of the committee. Thus with the most searching criticism we go through the entire forty-eight lessons of the year. Within the last three days we spent two whole sessions on the first division of forty-eight lessons for 1910, an afternoon and an evening. Now after this committee has carefully gone over the lessons in this way, they are printed and sent out to seventy-two publishers, and lesson writers, in all parts of the world, who are asked to send in their suggestions and criticisms for another revision. When we meet the following year, all these criticisms sent in are carefully classified by the secretary, taken up and gone over minutely by the lesson committee, with the proof lessons before them. I have here in my hands over 125 suggestions that have come in from Great Britain and India and America for our consideration in the final revision of the lessons for 1909. In our three full sessions covering forty-eight lessons, we changed and modified thirty-one themes, thirty-three Golden Texts, twenty-two lesson assignments, nine commitment verses and cut out six lessons and inserted six new lessons. Now, after this revision work is done the lessons are finally printed and sent, always two years in advance, to comment writers. The lesson committee provides no helps, does no work of that kind, simply outlines the lessons, which are sent out for the lesson writers and commentators to prepare the lessons which are used in our schools. Note, then, that the lessons we use are the result of the work of a sub-committee of the entire lesson committee present on one occasion, of the criticism of all the leaders in the Sunday school world, revised by the lesson committee and then put into your hands. The entire Sunday school world has a hand in it, and it is done in as thorough a manner as our lesson committee knows how to do it. We do the work just as faithfully and carefully as we know how.

There are certain established principles which we follow in selecting our lessons: (1) We select Scripture passages that are as much connected as possible; (2) we select lessons which have in them elements which answer to the best modern pedagogical methods; (3) we select such lessons as contain in them some fundamental moral and religious truth. In all the work that the lesson committee does, its chief purpose and highest aim is to serve our day and generation and to promote the glory of God on earth.

RECEPTION FOR PRINCE

WILL BE THE BIG EVENT AT THE JAMESTOWN, VA., FAIR ON MONDAY.

IS THE GRANDSON OF KING OSCAR

Said By Those Who Have Met Him to Be Charming and Democratic in Manner, Wholly Unaffected By Position.

Special to Democratic-Sentinel.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 17.—A reception fitting his royal blood will be tendered his royal highness, Prince Wilhelm, grandson of King Oscar, of Sweden, who is due to arrive here Monday on board the armored cruiser Fylgia of the Swedish navy. Diplomats, exposition officers, army and navy officers and society leaders will vie with each other in entertaining the young prince during his stay of three days in Norfolk. The United States navy will join in the reception and the battleships in Hampton Roads will boom out a royal salute upon the arrival of the Swedish cruiser with the prince on board.

Monday will be spent by Prince Wilhelm in paying and receiving calls. In the evening the prince will be the guest of honor at a dinner at the Hotel Chamberlain, given by Minister Lagercrantz, Sweden's diplomatic representative in Washington. Hemming Fernstrof, Swedish vice consul, will entertain the prince at dinner on Tuesday evening, the banquet to be held at the Virginia club. On the same night the sixty Swedish naval cadets accompanying the sailor prince will be given a grand ball in the exposition convention hall.

From Norfolk the prince will go to Oyster Bay, where he will have an audience with President Roosevelt. At Newport, where the prince will arrive next Thursday, the special features incident to his American visit will reach their height. When he reaches the Rhode Island resort the usual salutes will be fired and he will receive a few callers on board the cruiser. In the evening he will dine with Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, and will meet all of the most prominent members of the summer colony, numbering more than 100. From Mrs. Fish's dinner he will go to a ball to be given in his honor by Mrs. E. J. Berwind at her Newport villa, the Elms.

The second day at Newport will be devoted to sightseeing about the city. In the evening Mrs. Ogden Mills, who entertained Prince Henry, of Prussia, on his visit to America will give a dinner in his honor.

On Saturday Mrs. Richard Gambrill will give a garden party, and in the evening the prince will return the courtesies by a dinner on board the Fylgia. On Saturday, the final day of his stay in Newport, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish will give a farewell luncheon to the prince at the Cross-ways.

On the following Monday, August 26, the prince will arrive in Boston, where he will be the guest at a dinner given by Vice Consul Rosentwist. The prince will stay in the Hub over night and will leave the next morning for Providence. On August 29 he will reach New York, where he will be given a banquet by the leading Swedes of the metropolis at the Hotel Astor. At this celebration there will be several hundred students from Lindsborg college, Lindsborg, Kan., who will give a saengerfest in the prince's honor. Prince Wilhelm will remain in New York until September 2 and will pay a visit to Coney Island while there.

Prince Wilhelm is the second son of Crown Prince Gustave, and bears the title of Duke of Sodermanland. He is said by those who have met him to be charming and democratic in manners and wholly unaffected by his royal position. He speaks excellent English, and is so anxious to acquire the correct American accent and to be conversant with American expressions that for months he has been conversing daily with a teacher of languages. He is an enthusiastic sportsman and an expert at golf and tennis. His love of the water has won for him the title of the "sailor prince."

"We never repent of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Arlington Pharmacy.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

Special Correspondence.

New York, Aug. 15.—There is always to the feminine heart a joy in getting ready an outfit, but it is for the bride that the richest fabrics, laces and jewels are gathered together. The finest needle workers of the world toil to make their gowns and lingerie of the daintiest, and as September is one of the months that is especially set aside for weddings, just as after the Easter time is, the designers and manufacturers and the modistes are just now busy finishing up some very beautiful outfits for some of our most fashionable brides, and from the knowledge gained of these, many items of interest will be of value to other prospective brides.

Satin is the material par excellence for the wedding gown, and the princess mode in white satin, with point lace is the combination chosen nine cases out of ten. At a smart wedding last week, where this description fits the bride's robes, the bridesmaids' frocks were of a model similar to that of the bride's gown, although fuller, the pale blue chiffon, of which they were made, requiring more fullness than the heavy white satin of the bride. The guimpe and sleeves of the bride's gown were of point lace, the sleeves being made of double flounces. Fine white lace was used in a similar manner for the bridesmaids' dress gimpes. The stocks of all the gowns were very high. Tulle is being used for some bride's gowns. Where again is being used the thin light weaves are being chosen. Glossy silk crepe weaves have sprung up abundantly under various names and they, too, have been chosen. Chiffon cloth is a good stand by for brides who consider economy and intend to give the wedding gown practical use later on. Everything in this line is of princess shape, with more or less empire effect, although a skirt and bodice effect is often given by the girle arrangement. The only effect of the empire is often the lifting of the girle in the back, which extends the lines of the train above the waist line and gives a pretty fullness at that point which is especially becoming to the girlish figure. The back of the wedding gown is of more importance, as it is more conspicuous during the ceremony than the front, the bride's back being toward the guests most of the time until the reception begins.

Great care should be taken to see that it is becoming. Empire effects are not apt to be becoming to short, plump figures, and the most prevalent mistake just now is to choose this style when it does not suit. A princess shape in the right hands can be made becoming to almost anyone. Long lovely folds are an essential to this part of the gown. There should be no fastening of any sort at the back of any wedding gown, whatever the model. The guimpes of wedding gowns all have high necks and elbow sleeves. The yokes are of transparent lace over chiffon. Stocks are very high. The great popularity of ruffled or flounced lace sleeves makes them to be often seen. By tradition, the wedding gown has an air of girlish simplicity, but, withal, a note of dignity befitting the occasion. When the gown is trimmed with lace the French dressmaker invariably prescribes a plain tulle veil, made very long and full. When there is an ancestral lace veil in the family which is to be worn she recommends tulle trimmings in ruffles and frills, for she has an undying prejudice for lace in both gown and veil.

Do not mix the flowers in the wedding toilette, that is, if orange blossoms decorate the gown, wear them also in the hair, not another kind of flower. Sometimes roses and lilies of the valley and orange blossoms are combined, but in that case both are used in the hair and in the gown also. For the bridal bouquet flowers are often combined. Lilies of the valley and orchids on the opposite side of the bouquet were carried by a recent bride. Another bunch was made up of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. A girl with a Scotch name copied the Scotch brides by using Scotch heather.

Crossbarred dimiti, dainty, with little colored flowers, is one of the fads of the season for trousseau sets for girlish brides. Among the lingerie, a one-piece garment that combines corset cover, knee petticoat and drawers is the one that is popular for wear with the wedding gown, and, in fact, all dressy gowns, because the fit is so smooth for the princess modes now so fashionable. This garment eliminates all bands and does away with all traces of bunchiness and wrinkles. The princess gown, of all others, calls for perfect fitting underwear.

A pretty fancy is the embroidering of the white stockings, to be worn with the initial monogram or full name in blue silk. This provides the propitious "something blue," that all brides should wear for luck. One of the latest developments for brides with pretty feet is the little shoes of silver brocade to go with the wedding gown. The modern bride does not provide such quantities of clothing as heretofore; and now the rich bride only provides at most a dozen of the different undergarments, about half of this quantity may do; a dozen pairs of stockings are now too many, although for a season when, as now, hosiery and shoes must match the costume as well in color as in style. As for shoes, the slenderest allowance must include walking shoes for ordinary wear, shoes for the mild days, slippers, evening shoes, and those special ones to match certain costumes.

The lingerie pieces in the trousseau include chemises, drawers, petticoats, corset covers, and night dresses. A "set" consists of one of each of these garments, all to match. The combination garment has become a necessity with the styles of gowns now worn. They eliminate all fullness and some pretty models are to be found at the pattern counters or from any of the houses that design these patterns. Many of these things may be bought in the stores, but to all brides there is a fascination in doing a great deal of this fine sewing herself. Petticoat flounces with dainty lace are a necessity for afternoon gowns of fine silk and wool or those of lighter goods yet. For the morning a plain skirt with scalloped edges or finished with hem stitched ruffle is the better taste. Silk made embroidered hose is for the dress occasion, and thin, fine but plain lisle thread for the street or morning wear.

The shape of up to date underwear is designed to give the wearer a round bust, a tapering waist and an exact smoothness over the hips.

A pretty calling costume was made from supple taffeta of one of the new warm browns, shot with golden lights. The cape-like affairs that formed the front were cut in one width with the back which ended with the waist line. There the coat skirt was gathered on and the belt ran up in the most original way. There were no sleeves which put it in the class of the "slip on" affairs, which all are going to wear so much this autumn. And, of course, it was embroidered. The embroidery was done in shades of tan and brown, and was quite heavy and done so beautifully as only the French needle woman can do. Rows of narrow silk braid in brown edged the coat. The buttons were all dull Roman gold. There was no evidence of fullness in the skirt, except what was supplied in the pleated fans at the foot. There were these fans on either side. There was no embroidery or braid on the skirt. It depended entirely upon its clever lines and on the richness of the sombre silk for the effect.

A going away gown of blue serge, a material that holds its own so well, would be fetching trimmed with white buttons. This was the simplest little coat and skirt, and depended upon its good cut for its effect, on the touches of tan buckskin on the cuffs and collar. The ever useful Eton model was used for the coat, which started by being double breasted at the top button, but slanted off toward the bottom, where it did not close at all. The cuffs and collar of serge had over cuffs and collar of tan buckskin, braided with a fine braid in white. The little pockets on each side of the fronts on the bust were treated in the same way. The skirt was pleated and had two stitched bands above the hem.

A reception dress could be constructed with silk mousseline, lined with a contrasting shade, either darker or lighter in color, according to the intensity of the mousseline in tone. For this gown an empire would be best in modes. Let the yoke and sleeves receive all the ornamentation and the skirt depended upon its long graceful lines for its beauty. Oyster white, made up over a delicate shade of pink, would be effective with Point de Venice yoke, two flounce sleeves of the lace, a girle of embroidery silk and pearl trimmings, or a touch of real pearls for the neck, if the bride can afford them. In the hair there should be a small string of pearls also. White stockings and white silk shoes, having mother-of-pearl buckles, would complete the costumes. If it can not be done with these materials, use the same color and style and goods of a less expensive variety.

BULLET INTO STOMACH

Of the Man Who Had Annoyed Her With His Attentions.

Youngstown, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Driven to distraction by the attentions of her brother-in-law, David Job, a mill worker, Miss Sabina Kelly shot him and he will die from the results of a bullet wound in the stomach. He is a man of 28, has been a widower for the past four years since the death of her sister and has been forcing his attentions on her.

She has been a nurse at the city hospital and she left here to avoid him, going to the West Pennsylvania hospital in Pittsburgh. She recently returned and she says despite her frequent protestations he would come to the house. She declares that her mother favored his suit and urged him to come to the house.

When he came the last time she ordered him away. When he did not go she secured a revolver and fired point blank, but missed. Later when the police arrived and ordered her to produce the revolver she went to her room and took it from her trunk. Job was standing there and she reached around the policeman and fired at him as all three stood in the room. The wound will be fatal.

STRONG Again

Is what Mrs. Lucy Stovall, of Tilton, Ga., said after taking Kodol for Dyspepsia. Hundreds of other weak women are being restored to perfect health by this remedy. YOU may be well if you will take it.

Indigestion causes nearly all the sickness that women have. It deprives the system of nourishment and the delicate organs peculiar to women suffer—weak, and become diseased.

Kodol For Dyspepsia

enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten. It nourishes the body, and rebuilds the weak organs, restoring health and strength. Kodol relieves indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, sour risings, belching, heartburn and all stomach disorders.

Digests What You Eat

CUBAN ACCOSTED WOMAN

Whipping From the Husband and Stiff Fine From the Judge

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—Manuel R. Embil, secretary of the Cuban consulate here, charged with "mashing," was fined by Judge Tracy in the First district police court for annoying Mrs. Osman Reichel.

He declared that in accosting her on the street his intentions were good and friendly, but the judge imposed fines and costs aggregating $65.

Embil is secretary to Alberto Santiso, Cuban vice consul here. Mr. Santiso paid the fine of his secretary, but said he would compel Embil to make a written report to him of the affair, and he would send it, together with a full report of his own, to the Cuban government.

Embil was walking near the Jefferson hotel when he met Mrs. Reichel and her baby. He stopped and petted the child and said to the mother: "Such a pretty baby! Why do you not have something upon its head? The child will catch cold."

She walked away, but he followed and squeezed her hand. Just then Reichel, the husband, for whom she was waiting, came and he gave the Cuban a whipping. Later the secretary was arrested.

The High School in Tyler

MRS. STELLA LANE

(The following story is from the New York Independent, an educational journal, and may be of interest to fathers and mothers, to whom the same problem is presented when their boys and girls become students in high schools. The story is practically a true one, with changes in the name of the town and the personages depicted.)

Before John had made his little venture in copper, and while we yet lived in the little cottage, my oldest daughter, Helen, was in the grades, and had never become popular. Indeed, many times during those early days, I taxed my mind trying to think of soothing things to say which might heal her childish wounds and suppress the petty jealousies engendered, because the children of the "best families" frowned upon her socially and did not invite her to join any of the juvenile clubs.

At this time I was having similar experiences in my own social relations with the parents of these children, and I could fully sympathize with my daughter's little heartaches and piques of pride.

About a year after we had built us a large house on one of the best streets in Tyler, Helen entered the high school. Then it was that she suddenly leaped into popularity.

During the first few weeks after school opened she was much sought after by both "The Elites" and "The Dessert Club," the two best girls' clubs; also "rushed" by "The Swells" and "The Nobility," the two leading boys' clubs.

The members of these clubs devoted much time to electioneering and a subtle sort of diplomacy in competing for desirable new members among the few elect, while the greater number of boys and girls were passed over unnoticed and unsolicited.

It seemed to me Helen was a little young for club life and the numerous social distractions, which, I was told, necessarily accompanied it, so, after considerable deliberation, we decided that she should wait a year before joining any club.

Such a thing as a girl "turning down" both The Elite and The Dessert Club, we were informed, had never before happened in Tyler. And during the succeeding few weeks our domestic tranquility was greatly disturbed. Helen was forewarned that "the girls" would not merely be in different to her, but they would boycott her socially, and deliberately shut her out from "the best things going." Indeed, the child was so wrought up and alarmed about her future that I almost repented of this decision John and I had made.

About a month later, however, a member of The Swells boldly announced that he would accept a dictum from no girls' club, and invited Helen to the "autumn dance," given annually by his club.

For two weeks before the party was given the child was in a continuous flutter of excitement. The first party dress was being made. Several of "the girls" who had begun to soften somewhat toward Helen, and Dorothy Driggs, a niece of Mrs. Tweak, who was especially anxious to get her launched right socially, seemed to disagree with me upon many little points under consideration. The crucial difference was about "low neck" and "short sleeves." I was willing to compromise on short sleeves and a lace yoke, but remained steadfast about the low neck, about which I learned "the girls" had said I was an old fogey.

At last, the evening of the party arrived. Helen was superlatively happy; all the little bickering we had had seemed to have been wiped out in her rapturous anticipation; even the lace yoke was now beautiful and satisfactory to her. The hours on the pretty engraved invitations read from eight to eleven, but by seven Helen was dressed and roseate. She went to the parlor and played all the dreamy pieces she knew until half past eight. By nine she looked frightened and slightly feverish, and I think she began to be fearful lest young Burdett should fail her at the last moment. At last, about a quarter past nine, a carriage drove up, and the young man, who was not nearly full grown, came slowly sauntering in, dressed in evening dress, pumps, white tie and gloves.

"Why, Rollie," said I, as Helen hurried into her wraps, "we had about concluded you were not coming."

"Oh, there is no hurry, Mrs. Lane," he replied, languidly, "for you know we do not want to go on time and appear like jays."

I glanced out of the window and saw the cab was waiting.

"Surely, Rollie," I protested, "you are not going to ride to the hall, only two blocks away, on this beautiful moonlight night?"

"Certainly, we are, Mrs. Lane. You know I belong to The Swells, and we can not afford to give The Nobles a chance to laugh at us."

The party was a great success, Helen declared. She assured me she had come away first, and as soon as the refreshments were served. The day following she told me her experience in detail. As nearly as I could gather, every feature had been carried out with punctilious ceremony and precision, just like the grand parties in the full grown world.

"Who were the chaperons?" I chanced to inquire.

"That is one thing, mother," came the solemn reply, "about which both The Swells and The Nobility are absolute. They say they will not be tethered to governesses; they are able to take care of themselves. Chaperons are all right in the east, where boys and girls are unused to freedom from childhood, but out here, where they breathe free air, and at an early age think and decide for themselves, chaperons are superfluous."

The child waxed eloquent as she recited all this to me, and I saw she was deeply impressed with the high sounding logic of her argument for freedom, and I was not inclined to raise a new issue just then.

At the opening of the following school year, after Mrs. Tweak had dilated on several occasions upon the many advantages accruing to a member of these high school clubs, she approached me very cautiously one morning about Helen. The Dessert Club, she said, would be very glad to have Helen join them, but they would never again suffer the humiliation of being turned down. The girls could not have forgiven last year's rebuff had she not explained that I was not a club woman myself, and could not be expected to understand the ethics of club life. This was at a point in my own social career when my pride was easily punctured, and this little thrust did not leave me unscathed.

I would consult with John about the matter, I said, and thus the decision was somewhat belated, for neither John nor I could make each other see the value of all the advantages Mrs. Tweak had enumerated to me.

At last one evening, after I had broached the subject for the fourth time, hoping to force John to a decision, he poignantly remarked, "After all, Stella, I don't see but Helen is hankering after the same thing you've been wanting all the time, so perhaps you had better let her join."

Some weeks later Helen came home one evening looking somewhat dejected.

"Mother," she complained, "Dorothy Driggs has given me to understand plainly that the girls of our club do not think I dress well enough for school; they think it is each girl's duty to look as well and stylish as possible, to keep up the reputation of her club."

"But, my child," I replied, greatly astonished, "your clothes are plain and well made, and certainly very suitable for school."

"That is just the point," she retorted, "they are too plain and in no way distinguish me from the mass of girls who do not belong to clubs. Most of the girls wear their best things to school, and say they would rather appear plain or shabby at home or on Sundays than lower the standard at school; besides," she added, looking yet more dejected, "most of the girls have necklaces, bracelets or watches; some have diamond rings or sunbursts, or watches set in diamond chips and pearls, and I have only this shabby little ring."

"Very well," said I, hoping to comfort her, "I will visit the high school and see how the girls dress."

Several days later I made my visit. I arrived shortly before the bell for intermission rang, and immediately all the girls of The Dessert Club flocked about me to pay their court. Dorothy Driggs, dressed in a pretty brown checked silk, which I knew had just recently been made, first greeted me. Her coiffure was a very high and elaborate pompadour, with a sparsely covered "rat" peeping boldly out at one end. On her fingers were at least six rings and about her neck was a delicate necklace, with a pendant set in pearls and a single solitaire—Mrs. Tweak's last Christmas gift. Next several girls whose clothes were less elaborate, but not unpretentious, greeted me, and finally, Belva Lighthouse, who was then the most popular and most envied girl in The Dessert Club, came up.

In spite of the crisp autumn weather, Belva wore a white silk and lace waist, cut slightly low at the neck and with sleeves only to the elbow. Her skirt was an elaborate, creaking, black taffeta, the one, Helen told me later, which her mother had recently bought in Goshen for thirty dollars. At her neck was a large sunburst, and on the left side of her chest was suspended a small gold watch, set in diamond and chips of pearl. On her arm was a heavy link gold bracelet, with a medallion set in various stones on top. This was young Herbert Dasher's latest gift to Belva. Helen confided to me when we got home. Herbert had locked the bracelet and now carried the key, so Belva could not take it off.

I could now readily understand why my daughter was unhappy about her clothes, for they were conspicuously plain among her present associates, and we compromised on her wearing her second best things generally, and her nicest things on extra occasions.

One Saturday afternoon early in the following spring, Helen had been invited to take a long ride in the country with Jack Stevens, Evelyn Quickley and Rollie Burdett.

About 5 o'clock I chanced to glance out of the front window, when I saw the little party had returned. Jack, sprawling on the end of his spinal column, his feet perched on the dashboard, smoking a huge curved pipe, sat in the front of the surrey with Helen. In the rear sat Rollie, huddled in a heap, occupying most of the seat, pompously blowing wreaths of cigarette smoke into Evelyn's face. The boys, in their present grotesque positions, looked even more undersized and diminutive than usual—in fact, I have noticed that the high school boys are mostly undersized when compared with the girls, while Helen and Evelyn looked large, well developed and radiant as they alighted.

At the earliest opportunity I remonstrated with my daughter for allowing the boys to smoke pipes or cigarettes while walking or driving with her.

She was very positive in opposing my argument. Since the other girls did not object, she said, why should she pose as a reformer?

I concluded the little altercation by telling her to place the burden of the objection upon me, and to admit to the boys that I realized I was fussy and old fashioned, but objected to her walking in the street with a boy smoking.

A few days later she came in from school, her eyes twinkling, and I knew she had something which to her seemed momentous to tell.

She immediately began: "Jack Stevens walked part way home with me, mother. He started to light his pipe and I told him what you said."

"Was he offended?"

"Oh, no," she continued, with a flavor of bravado, echoing Jack's manner. "He said: 'I'm afraid, Helen, your mother is a little passie (meaning passe) in this world. Tell her I happen to know that men at Oxford and Harvard smoke pipes with women on the streets, and if 'gams' like that can do it I guess there's no harm for 'jays' like us doing it.'"

"Did Jack put his pipe away?" I asked, calmly.

"Oh, certainly."

"Well," I replied, firmly, "I still persist in being fussy and old fashioned."

Early at the beginning of the following school year, The Nobles announced that they were going to vary the usual monotony of their dancing party by having a hay ride into the country; an old settler fiddler to play for the dance, and a farmer's supper before returning home.

The Nobles had hit upon a happy idea, I thought, for this kind of entertainment impressed me as being infinitely more attractive for very young people than the conventional dancing party. So when Helen was invited I readily consented to her going.

"Who are the chaperons?" I asked a few days after the invitation had been accepted, for it had not occurred to me that these young lords and ladies would object to escorts on an escapade of this kind.

"Oh, mother," replied my daughter, seemingly alarmed, "I do hope you are not going to reopen this old issue of chaperons, when you know how strongly most of the boys and girls feel about it. How I wish you were an active worker in the foreign missionary society, like Mrs. Aspire; then you would not have so much time to be concerned about the customs at home!"

I did not press the matter further with the girl, for I knew she was powerless to change matters, but it occurred to me to appeal through the telephone to Mrs. Aspire, who was socially obscure, but a tireless worker and extremely ambitious to launch her two pretty daughters on the highest plane of Tyler society.

"Both of your daughters are invited to the hay ride party," I began.

"Yes, they are very fortunate," came the response.

"Do you know that The Nobles have made no provision for taking an older person with them, and the party is not likely to get back before midnight?"

"Well," Mrs. Aspire inquired, "Do you not think that if several of the most popular girls would stand out firmly for a chaperon, the boys could be persuaded to take some older person along?" I continued.

"I should hate awfully, Mrs. Lane," came a pungent reply, "to have as little confidence in my daughters as you seem to have in yours. If I had not absolute faith in my children I should not allow them to go at all."

"It is not for lack of faith in my daughter," I retorted, somewhat nettled, "that I am so solicitous in this matter, for I am sure that she could be trusted as well as most of the girls, and better than some of them; it is rather for the sake of the single one who might commit an indiscretion, and for the personal consolation I should have in knowing that an older person would be with them in case of accident."

"I am sorry to be obliged to tell you that I am with The Nobles and The Swells in this matter," and thus the dialogue concluded.

I next made a very cautious appeal to several of the boys, with whom I was now on a very friendly footing. The consented to invite two young women who had recently been graduated from an eastern college, as "guests of honor," but it was to be distinctly understood that they were not chaperons.

I had now begun to experience some of the harassing trials with housemaids, of which I had so frequently heard my friends tell. For several months I had been unable to procure any one who had had the most elementary training in cooking and housework. I had always insisted on the principle that each of my children have some little share in the household duties, but now I was compelled to increase my demands temporarily. Helen's time for recreation after school was limited to an hour; then she helped me prepare the dinner, and each Saturday morning she spent several hours with me in the kitchen cooking.

One evening she came in from school looking very doleful and began to murmur, "Mother, do you know I am about the only girl in the crowd who must do housework or cooking? The girls think it is an imposition that I must help in the kitchen while I am trying to keep up my music."

"It is a little hard just now, Helen," I replied ruefully, "but I certainly hope we will soon be able to find a maid of some kind. But tell me who does all the work in the girls' homes, for you know most of their mothers are often without maids?"

"Oh, their mothers do it, Mrs. Aspire, for instance, says she was the oldest of a large family, and had a hard time when she was a girl, but she means to have her daughters fitted for better things than housework. Most of the girls have never cooked at all, and they say if they do not learn they will never have it to do."

"But if they should marry and have homes and families of their own?"

"Oh, but most of them say they will never have families, and they are going to board when they marry."

"What do they expect to do in return for the men who must work to board and clothe them?" I inquired.

"I don't know," came a belated reply. "I have never heard them say."

At last, a maid was found, one in whom was combined a good cook and housemaid, and happy was I to be relieved of some of my onerous burdens. Helen had been so faithful and cheerful in assisting me, after the one little protest, that I told her she might have a party as soon as we had recovered from the spring house cleaning.

The young people had a jolly evening, frolicking and dancing, and all of my pre-conceived little prejudices against some of their ways of doing were felicitously wiped out by their spontaneous youthful merriment until about an hour before the time of disbanding. They seemed somewhat fatigued, when some one proposed that they have a little music.

Mary Sensesome was called upon, and went timidly to the piano and began Weber's "Invitation to the Dance." She had hardly finished the pretty introduction, when one boy called out, "None of that, Mary!" And another, "Nothing classic for this crowd, Mary."

The girl slowly desisted, turned about, her face crimson: "I thought you all knew that I can not play rag-time," she said, as she left her seat. And no one asked her to continue playing, although she was recognized her two pretty daughters on the highest plane of Tyler society.

"Both of your daughters are invited to the hay ride party," I began.

"Yes, they are very fortunate," came the response.

as one of the best amateur musicians in the town.

Next, someone proposed that they all sing together. As chorus singing is always a pleasure to me, I ventured to take a seat in the rear of the room with the young folks, and the singing began. First there were a few insipid love songs, but gradually the music took on a little more vivid coloring and the young people a little more animation. Some walked about, acting pantomime, making eyes, leering, etc., as the words of the song suggested. Perhaps a dozen songs were sung before I left the room, among which I can only recollect some of the titles and little snatches of the words, and Helen declares she can not recall the words to them, and I have made no effort to spur her memory.

Won't You Come and Fondle Me; Kiss Me, Kiss Me; Coax Me, and Making Eyes were the titles which most impressed me. The chorus of the first song I easily retained: "Won't you fondle me? Put your arms about me in a loving way."

Tell me that you love me, and you're going to stay. I'll stop flirting, too, 'cause it's hurting you. Tell you that my heart's a-burning for you.

If you'll only fondle me." "Making Eyes" is the single song of which I have been able to get a verse intact:

"In a cozy corner with your beau, Lights are low—cheeks aglow— You say, 'Want a squeeze?' She says, 'O, you tease.' Just the same she doesn't answer 'No.' Tell her she's the only girl you prize— Just your size—she'll get wise. Play the little game all lovers seem to know by heart. Making goo-goo eyes."

As the singing of "Making Eyes" was concluded, Jack Stevens remarked that the singing of that song always made him blush. Fearing lest I might further heighten Jack's lonely blushes, I left the room, and the young people soon departed for home in a supremely hilarious state of mind.

One afternoon toward the close of the spring term, Helen came dashing in: "Oh, mother," she spluttered, "we have had a great commotion in school today. Rollie Burdett and Evelyn Quickley have sent out cards announcing their engagement, and last evening at the party (to which Helen had not been invited) they stood in line and received formal congratulations. Evelyn is only 15 and Rollie 17, and they say their parents know nothing about their engagement yet."

The next evening, just about dusk,

Just the same she doesn't answer 'No.' Tell her she's the only girl you prize— Just your size—she'll get wise. Play the little game all lovers seem to know by heart. Making goo-goo eyes."

As the singing of "Making Eyes" was concluded, Jack Stevens remarked that the singing of that song always made him blush. Fearing lest I might further heighten Jack's lonely blushes, I left the room, and the young people soon departed for home in a supremely hilarious state of mind.

One afternoon toward the close of the spring term, Helen came dashing in: "Oh, mother," she spluttered, "we have had a great commotion in school today. Rollie Burdett and Evelyn Quickley have sent out cards announcing their engagement, and last evening at the party (to which Helen had not been invited) they stood in line and received formal congratulations. Evelyn is only 15 and Rollie 17, and they say their parents know nothing about their engagement yet."

BIG PARADE ON MONDAY

BY THOUSANDS OF FORMER SOLDIERS OF THE POPULAR GERMAN KAISER.

WILL MEET IN DENVER, COLORADO

With 10,000 Marchers Clad in the Gay Uniforms of German Regiments, Pageant Will Be Impressive.

Special to Democrat-Sentinel.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 17.—Thousands of former soldiers of the kaiser, who have become citizens of the United States, are today the guests of Denver, coming here to take part in the annual reunion of the National Federation of Former German Soldiers, or Nord-Amerikanische Kriegerbund.

This is the first time the body has met west of the Mississippi, and this fact has helped to greatly swell the attendance.

The local society of ex-German soldiers is in charge of the reunion and has raised $25,000 to entertain the visitors.

The Kriegerbund was organized in the fatherland shortly after the German armies had vanquished the grand army of France, and when the memory of the glorious victories over Austria and Denmark in the 'sixties was still fresh in the minds of all Germans everywhere.

Early in 1870 the first federation was formed and has since spread to every country where former soldiers of the emperor are to be found.

The American body is founded on lines similar to the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans.

One of the features of the reunion will be the parade on Monday, when it is expected that no less than 10,000 men will be in line. With the marchers clad in the gay uniforms of German regiments, the pageant is expected to be one of the most impressive ever seen on the streets of Denver.

MENTIONED FOR OFFICE

FIVE SPOKEN OF FOR THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION FOR SHERIFF.

THERE ARE SEVEN DEMOCRATS, TOO

But the Chilly Blasts of Winter, Followed by April Showers and May Flowers, Come Before Primaries.

Some time since the Democrat-Sentinel mentioned the fact that seven names were already spoken of in connection with the Democratic nomination for sheriff.

Since then five have been mentioned for the nomination on the republican side for the same office, making an even dozen who have signified their willingness to don Sheriff Sprecher's official sandals.

The first to shy his beaver into the political arena has had the experience of one campaign, having made the race on a platform promulgated by himself; and while defeated by a few hundred votes, he thinks he should be the logical candidate and rewarder with a renomination.

A well known farmer of the southwest part of the county, who was born and reared in Pettis county and has always voted the republican ticket, has never before asked for office and believes the offices should be handed around. His friends will put up a strong fight at the primary.

An extensive and popular farmer of the east side, who sometimes plunges with fast horses, is being mentioned by his friends, and should he decide to make the race he will push the other fellows at the home stretch.

One of the most popular conductors that has a run in and out of Sedalia is being mentioned as a prospective candidate for sheriff on the republican ticket, and while he may be slow to decide to give up a good life time job for a chance for office on the republican ticket in Pettis county, still his friends claim, should he decide to enter the race, he will secure votes with the same ease with which he punches tickets, bounces tramps and waits on his lady passengers.

The last but not the least to quietly whisper his willingness to assume Sheriff "Newt's" official duties is a retired farmer, who is in business in Sedalia, for pasture and his health. He is an old Pettis county boy, who has generally been considered a good republican, with slight variations. True, he voted for Bryan for president both times he was a candidate, and stands ready to give him the third punch, but should he succeed in getting the nomination for sheriff he will probably forego the dictates of his better judgment and vote the straight republican ticket.

However, the frosts of another winter, followed by April showers and May flowers, will have passed before the nominating conventions, and some mentioned may drop out, while others may take their place, and the voters may not make haste to make their selections.

POSITIVE PROOF.

Should Convince the Greatest Skeptic in Sedalia.

Because it's the evidence of a Sedalia citizen.

Testimony easily investigated. The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best proof. Read it:

Mrs. K. W. Daniels, of 901 South Harrison avenue, Sedalia, Mo., says: "It is over two years ago that I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Previous to that time I had suffered severely from misery in my back and kidneys. It was not constant, but the recurrence of the pain and other symptoms were far too frequent to be pleasant. One day my husband brought home a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from W. E. Bard's drug store and induced me to try them. The result was a complete cure, and since then I have scarcely known what it is to have a touch of backache."

J. B. Bollman, assistant superintendent of the Missouri Society for the Friendless, with headquarters in Kansas City, was a visitor in this city Sunday. While here he attended services at each of the churches, and was given an opportunity to lay before the members of the various congregations the progress of the work he represents.

A church picnic was held in the Springs grounds Thursday by the Presbyterian church of this city, they having as guests the members of the Prairie church, located near Lexington. These churches have been grouped together for a number of years, the same pastor supplying both churches, and the social gathering was of great benefit to all.

E. L. Spurgeon and wife returned from Kansas City Thursday night.

HERE'S THE OPPORTUNITY ARE YOU THE MAN?

If an employer should say, "I want a man for an important position," would you be the right man?

On the Treadmill

There is no reason whatever why the life of any one should be a monotonous grind of toil without progress. Such a condition is abnormal; and one of its causes is the hugging of a fatal belief in the virtue of resignation. Just as soon as you stop being resigned, and buckle on the armor of ambition, and jump into the free-for-all with enthusiasm, betterment will come as a matter of course. Progress is the result of sensible dissatisfaction—rebellion against conditions that hamper. Those that bow down to precedents never establish any. But the fellow with moral courage enough to tackle anything standing in the road is almost certain to blaze a path that men will follow long after his monument has risen to remind them why he deserved it.

Why don't YOU get in line for a good position? It's the business of the International Correspondence Schools to help you. No matter who you are, what you do, or how little you earn, the I. C. S. comes to you RIGHT WHERE YOU ARE, at your present work, in your own home, and qualifies for the good things others will grasp if you don't wake up.

During the month of August we are making special concession in price to the people of Sedalia.

UNABLE TO MAKE BOND

After Being Bound Over, Charged With Assaulting a Girl.

Marysville, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Bert Flane, aged 30, a farmer of Delaware county, was bound over to the common pleas court yesterday by Magistrate M. W. Hill under a bond of $800, charged with criminally assaulting Miss Rosa Sine, the beautiful 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Sine, of Claiborne township.

It is alleged that Flane accomplished his purpose by threatening to shoot the girl with a revolver. He was arrested near Warrensburg, after being a fugitive for several days. He was unable to give bond, and was brought here and placed in the county jail to await the action of the September term of the common pleas court.

TRIP AROUND THE WORLD

SECRETARY OF WAR TAFT WILL LEAVE WASHINGTON TO-MORROW NIGHT.

A BIG RECEPTION ON HIS RETURN

This Was What Was Accorded Hon.
W. J. Bryan, and Possibly the Ohio Statesman Hopes for the Same Treatment.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Washington, Aug. 17.—When Secretary Taft leaves Washington tomorrow evening for Columbus, O., where he will definitely launch his presidential boom on Monday, he will not again be seen in the capital until he has completed a tour of the world. He has definitely decided to return from the Orient by way of the trans-Siberian railway, across Siberia and Russia, a route which Mrs. Taft is anxious to take on the return trip.

Practical politicians of Washington see in Secretary Taft's plans more than a mere desire to "see the country" in Northern Asia. They insinuate that Mr. Taft has not forgotten the joyous reception of William Jennings Bryan when he landed in New York from a tour of the world, and that the fat secretary of war is preparing for a similar glorious demonstration in his favor when he arrives in New York in December.

Certain it is that Mr. Taft's friends and advisers have been quick to appreciate the beauties of such a reception, and the political managers of the Taft boom are already planning to take full advantage of all the latest possibilities of the situation.

Political boomers have always recognized the value which attaches to foreign travel, and consider that their candidate already has the nomination in his pocket when he undertakes a world tour at the proper and logical time.

"Absence," reasons the political manager, "makes the heart grow fonder." If attended by proper publicity tactics at home, so as to avoid proving the truth of that old saying "Out of sight, out of mind." Such travel stimulates interest in a candidate more than stumping tours at home, if the proper sort of press agents are secured to "fake" cablegrams from the scenes of their candidate's triumphs.

It is stated that Secretary Taft will make a return visit in Tokyo, where he is already well known by reason of his trip to the Orient in 1905. During his stay in the Japanese capital at that time Mr. Taft quietly accomplished much that assisted in bringing the Russo-Japanese peace negotiations to a successful issue. The problem of bringing about an agreement between the Washington and Tokyo governments that will be satisfactory both in the matter of restriction of Japanese laborers from entering the United States is now one of vital importance, and it is the general belief in Washington that the secretary will tackle the question.
If he should be successful in his efforts the Taft boom would get a great deal of free advertising in the press of the country.

As the secretary's mission to the Philippines is one of great importance, both to the Philippines and the people of this country, he will get a liberal share of the limelight during his stay in the land of the little brown brother. His return in December, when President Roosevelt has recommended to congress the new policies which he hopes to see carried out by his successor in office, will find the time ripe for a general political utterance by Mr. Taft. With such a concatenation of fortuitous circumstances in his favor, the adverse secretary, by the exercise of proper discretion, should find himself several laps ahead of the other aspirants by the time the newspaper cartoonists are prepared to give a fitting welcome to the new-born year of 1908.

The most important speech of the western tour of the secretary will be made Monday at Columbus, when Mr. Taft will outline his policies for the benefit of the people of his home state. He will not speak in Lexington, Ky., until Aug. 22, and in the interim will probably stop at his old home in Cincinnati. The two days will give him plenty of time to talk with his lieutenants and managers, thus leaving his presidential boom in as good a state as possible.

From Kentucky Secretary Taft will proceed to Oklahoma City, passing through St. Louis, and will deliver a notable address in the new state metropolis next Saturday. The visit of Taft will undoubtedly be the occasion of the greatest republican demonstration to be held in the twin territories during the statehood campaign, and as such will attract national attention. It is stated that a strong feeling in favor of Senator La-

BUTTE UNION ROASTED

THE CONVENTION, AFTER MANY LENGTHY SPEECHES, SUS-TAINS OFFICIALS.

CROOKEDNESS HAD BEEN CHARGED

President Lynch, of International Typographical Union, and Associates Were Upheld in Every Respect.

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 17.—After seven hours of speechmaking, including notable addresses by President Lynch and Secretary Bramwood, the International Typographical Union of North America Friday afternoon adopted the report of the committee on the matter of the appeal of the Butte, Mont., union, thus sustaining the actions of the executive council in the matter of the settlement of the printers and pressmen's strike in February.

The Butte union was dissatisfied with the agreement with the newspaper publishers and took an appeal and filed a printed brief setting forth its contentions.

The document contained charges of a sensational nature against the international officers and the executive council, and the case has attracted much attention throughout the country.

The Butte union and its president and delegates were denounced by President Lynch, Secretary Bramwood and other speakers in the most bitter terms for circulating a brief which in plain terms charged the executive council with usurpation of authority, accepting bribes, selling out to newspaper publishers, etc.

There were only about seven dissenters to the adoption of the report of the committee, which recommended the indorsement of the action of President Lynch and associates on the board.

keen interest in the telephone. It was a Boston specialist, Dr. Clarence John Blake, a professor in the Harvard Medical school, who lent his advice as to aural problems to Alexander Graham Bell at the time the telephone was invented. Dr. Blake and Bell's other associate, Thomas A.
Watson, an electrical expert, had particular charge of the production of a marketable form of Bell's invention.

Now comes a doctor who, disregarding the practice of telephone users, affirms that mankind is right-eared. Some time ago it was alleged that telephone operators were so left-eared that their right ears were losing power. The operators themselves laughed at this report until it stopped. The fact is, the action of holding the telephone receiver to the left ear seems to be an instinctive one, and a proof that the human family is left-eared, if anything.

Of course the operator's work tends to sharpen the left ear beyond the common point, but there is no attendant discomfort. It is the practice among the Bell companies to make every reasonable provision for the operator's comfort. One of these comforts is the head receiver, which is held in place by a thin metal frame. This factor in the operator's work has received just as much attention from the experts concerned about her well being as have the special chair she sits on, the cosy rooms in which she enjoys her leisure moments, and the pure quality of the air she breathes during working hours.

So long as the natural impulse of telephone users—of whom there are about 3,000,000 in the Bell system alone—is to hold the receiver to the left ear, the statement that the world is right-eared will be hard to prove.

HOOTS OF AUTO'S HORN

Confused the Child, Who Stopped in the Path of the Machine.

Middletown, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Ellen Boyd, aged 5 years, daughter of George Boyd, vice president of the Merchants' National bank, of this city, was run down by an automobile here and probably fatally injured.
Three of the child's ribs were broken and other injuries were sustained.

The machine was occupied by Mrs.
Anna Lappan and daughter, of 149 Vine street, Dayton, Ohio, and their driver, Ernest Hayes, colored. Hayes was arrested.

Witnesses of the accident say that the child was running across the street, when Hayes, seeking to warn her of danger, sounded his horn. The

S.S.S. RIDES THE SYSTEM OF MALARIA

Malaria is an atmospheric poison which we unconsciously breathe into our system. The blood in its constant passage through the lungs absorbs the germs, and they destroy the rich, red corpuscles of this vital fluid and reduce it to such a weak, watery condition that it is unable to properly nourish the system, and disease gets a foothold. Then the symptoms of Malaria, such as pale, sallow complexions, weak vitality, poor appetite, deranged digestion, and perhaps chills and fever show that the trouble is affecting every part of the body. Malaria also affects the liver, producing a chronic state of biliousness, and often a long spell of fever follows when the blood becomes fully contaminated with the poison. Chronic Sores and Ulcers, boils, aches and pains, and skin affections of various kinds often result from this insidious disease if the poison is allowed to accumulate in the blood in sufficient quantities. Malaria must be removed from the system through the circulation, and for this purpose nothing equals S. S. S. This great remedy goes down into the blood and drives out all germs, microbes and poisons, and permanently cures Malaria. S. S. S. not only cleanses the blood of the cause, but furnishes it with the healthful properties it needs, so that instead of a weak, germ-infected stream, spreading disease throughout the system, it becomes a rich, red fluid, nourishing the body and enabling it to resist disease.
S. S. S. is also the greatest of all tonics, and builds up and invigorates the entire system while ridding the blood of the germs of Malaria. Persons who are suffering from Malaria will be pleased with the prompt and pleasant results produced by the use of S. S. S., and can take it with confidence because it is an absolutely safe medicine, being free from harmful minerals of any kind. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

chine and, was run over. Witnesses also say that the machine was moving comparatively slowly.

SOBBED IN A CELL

After Being Bound Over for Alleged Embezzlement.

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 17.—When arraigned in the police court Miss Daisy Kiefer, for 12 years a trusted employee of the Rike Dry Goods company, who was charged by that concern with embezzlement, waived examination and was held to the grand jury under a $2,000 bond, in default of which she was sent to jail.

The company missed a large package of money, containing $1,300, some time ago, and the young woman is alleged to have indicated a spot in Calvary cemetery where she attempted to burn a large portion of the money.

She also pointed out a small pile of ashes in the basement of her home, where several hundred dollars had been burned. Fragments of money were sent to Washington and $900 was redeemed.

The appearance of Miss Kiefer at the county jail was attended by several pathetic incidents. Accompanied by her aged father and weeping bitterly she passed the row of cells to the woman's department and requested that only her parents and her physician be permitted to see her. She was heavily veiled and everything possible was done to keep her from the public view.

Ten Days for Stealing $2.

James Morrissey was arrested Friday night, charged with petit larceny, and was given ten days in jail by Judge Leaming Saturday for disturbance of the peace. Morrissey was drunk when arrested. A young boy, whose name could not be learned, entered the saloon at the Falstaff hotel and ordered some liquor. Owing to his age, he was refused. Morrissey, under the influence of liquor, offered to purchase the "booze." Instead he took the boy's $2 bill and left by a rear door.

Poet and Former Asylum Inmate
Elope in an Automobile.

Clarksville, Tenn., Aug. 17.—The unusual sight of a man 75 years of age and a widow of 50 eloping in an automobile was seen here. Samuel C. Mercer, of Hopkinsville, Ky., former newspaper publisher, and a man of means, and Mrs. Anna McRae, who had been an inmate of the Western Kentucky insane asylum, having been refused a marriage license in that city, came to Clarksville in an automobile.

The telephone wires had been busy and when they applied for a license here they experienced the same trouble, the clerk refusing on the grounds that the woman was of unsound mind.

They were determined to carry out their plans, however, so they hastily entered their auto and started for Guthrie, Ky., where they were successful in securing the license and having the marriage ceremony performed. They returned to Clarksville and left soon afterward for their future home in Hopkinsville.

Mercer served two terms as state printer for Kentucky, and was editor of the Nashville Union, published in Nashville a number of years ago. He has quite a reputation as a poet.

TOOK NUDE PICTURES

Of Women Who Inhabit the Tenderloin District.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 17.—Harry C. Stege, official photographer at police headquarters, who has lately been elevated from the rank of patrolman to sergeant, was called before Mayor Beardsley and Police Commissioner Jones, in the former's office, Friday morning and asked if he made certain obscene photographs then in the mayor's possession.

Stege denied having made all but one of the pictures, but admitted that he had reproduced one particularly objectionable one from a drawing. This was in 1903, he said, and before he became a member of the department.

The photographs which Stege denied making were nudes and the likenesses of certain well known tenderloin characters appeared in them.

Stege was questioned concerning pictures of this nature some days ago in the presence of Chief of Police Ahern. He denied having taken any such pictures while a member of the police department.

SCALPED BY FLYWHEEL

Surgeons Sew Her Head Covering Back in Place.

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—Miss Elizabeth Gallighan, aged 22 years, Friday afternoon leaned too near a fast revolving flywheel in the shoe factory in which she is employed, and her entire scalp was torn from her head.

The scalp was removed from the flywheel intact, and surgeons performed a rare operation by sewing it back in place. Indications are that the operation was successful.

LAST OF THE OLD SCHOOL

AGED AUSTRIAN EMPEROR CELEBRATES SEVENTY-SEVENTH BIRTHDAY.

ENJOYS THE LOVE OF HIS PEOPLE

Francis Joseph Rules Over Strange Empire—Of Three Children, Crown Prince Rudolf Committed Suicide.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Vienna, Aug. 17.—Throughout the dual monarchy celebrations and fetes were held today in honor of the birthday of the aged Emperor Francis Joseph, who will tomorrow reach his 77th milestone, having been born August 18, 1830.

During the day the foreign diplomatic corps presented at the imperial palace messages of congratulation from Emperor William, King Edward, King Alfonso and other European monarchs. Never before have such elaborate preparations been made in the capital for the celebration of the emperor's birthday. Fetes and festivals of various kinds began early this morning and continued through the day, business being almost suspended.

Tomorrow solemn high mass in honor of the birthday of his majesty will be celebrated in the cathedral and in all the churches of Vienna. All of the streets of the city have been decorated and gala performances will be given in all the theatres.

The emperor, despite his long life of activity and the tragedies and scandals that have beset the royal house of Austria and in a measure embittered his life, is still blessed with a considerable degree of mental and physical health.

His recent efforts to bring about a reconciliation between King Edward and Emperor William, which bid fair to be crowned with success, attest his interest in political affairs. Such a reconciliation would be of great indirect benefit to the security of Austria, and the aged emperor went about its accomplishment in a manner that proves unusual diplomatic ability.

Despite the internal troubles which occasionally arise to mar the peace of the dual monarchy, the tribute paid by the people of Austria and Hungary is not the slavish submission of downtrodden subjects, but spontaneous testimonials to the admiration and love which the Austrians feel for their most generous of rulers. With the possible exception of Edward, there is no great monarch in the world who commands so much respect from his people. He has won this respect by a uniform generosity and kindness, such as manifested itself today in the granting of amnesty to all prisoners undergoing sentence for lese majesty.

During the reign of Francis Joseph, extending over nearly six decades, Austria has been transformed from the very center and citadel of conservatism to a place among the foremost camps of advanced liberalism. At the same time he has preserved the ancient traditions of the court, which today, as always, is the most aristocratic and exclusive in all Europe. Universal suffrage and great progress in art and letters, as well as material improvements, have been accomplished during the long reign of Francis Joseph and mainly through his efforts.

Emperor Francis Joseph is the last of the "old school" of potentates. As such, he enjoys the love of his people—a love having in its composition much of the blind, unreasoning trust of a child in its father—as does no other living ruler. In other monarchs the mask has been torn from the face of the king and the people have seen him as he is—a mere man of flesh and blood and a human passion, very much like themselves.

In Germany the militant social democrats have criticized their emperor so frequently and with such effect that conviction of lese majesty has become a mark of honor. Socialism and republican ideas, now rampant in Spain and Italy, detract much from the respect of the subjects for their ruler.

In England King Edward is looked upon as a sort of perpetual president—a fine old gentleman of good family, whom all Englishmen love, but still a man. It is only in Austria that the divinity that hedges about kings is still recognized and earnestly believed by a large majority of the people.

It is this love and respect shown by all classes, even during the most troublous times Austria has experienced, which justifies the belief that the empire in its present form will continue only so long as Francis Joseph lives. It is the realization of now much of the old emperor's power over his people is purely personal that causes thinking men to fear that when he topples into the open grave that awaits even emperors, the entire governmental structure will fall with him.

It is a strange empire over which Francis Joseph rules. An arbitrary wedding of a dozen races and nationalities, with a veritable polyglot of tongues, it will be strange indeed if the empire is not dissolved into its inharmonious component parts after the death of the emperor, the wedding force which now holds the nation together.

Francis Joseph was proclaimed emperor of Austria on the abdication of his uncle, Ferdinand I, on December 2, 1848. He was crowned king of Hungary June 8, 1867. He married in 1854 Elizabeth, a daughter of Duke Maximilian of Bavaria. Of his three children, the Crown Prince Rudolf committed suicide and the daughters are ineligible to the Austrian crown.

GEO. OLENDORF'S TRIP

Will Open His House at Chanute, Kas., September 18.

Messrs. W. W. Bell, of Pittsburg, and George Olendorf, of Sedalia, Mo., two of the lessees of the Hetrick theatre, are in Chanute this afternoon in conference with Manager Williams, says the Chanute, Kas. Sun of the 15th inst. The gentlemen are on a tour of inspection of the different theatres under their control.

It is the intention of the management to open the Hetrick about September 18, and have secured as an opening attraction the great comedy, "The Flower of the Ranch," a western comedy of the highest order. The company numbers forty-five people and is headed by Joe Howard and Mabel Barrison, two of the best known actors in the profession, who are strong favorites on Broadway.

Messrs. Bell and Olendorf report that in order to secure this attraction it was absolutely necessary to put up a large guarantee for the week's business in six of their best houses, otherwise they would not leave their large city engagements.

Several other large attractions are booked for the season in Chanute, among the most notable being "The Umpire," "The Time, the Place and the Girl," "Ezra Kendall" and others. The class of attractions will be much better than ever before and the lessees feel confident with the many improvements in Chanute this season the attendance at the theatre will be larger, consequently they have been able to book some very high class companies.

TWO MEN TEMPTED FATE

"TUMBLER BILL" AND "STEEPLEJACK" ANDERSON FATAL- LY HURT.

BOTH HAVE HAD CHARMED LIVES

The First Named Is Dying in a Hospital in Williamsburg and the Second Died Soon After He Was Injured.

New York, Aug. 17.—The charm that protected William V. Albright, better known as "Bill the Tumbler," seems to have been dispelled, and he is dying in the Williamsburg hospital from a fractured skull.

Albright was employed as an iron worker by Dunseath Brothers, who are building the connection between the Broadway elevated and the Williamsburg bridge. On Monday he arrived here from New Liverpool, Canada, and, displaying his union card, was promptly put to work.

Albright's reputation had preceded him. He was said to bear a charmed life. He had dropped 100 feet from a bridge in Pennsylvania, and escaped with a few bruises; he fell a distance of 87 feet from a building in New Liverpool, and when he picked himself up astonished his associates by declaring: "That was only a little bump."

Ten minutes after he was put to work Monday he lost his balance and fell to the bridge plaza. His fellow workmen were surprised when he did not pick himself up. They immediately summoned an ambulance and Albright was taken to the hospital.

When the physicians operated on him they found a three-inch nail buried deep in his skull. This was sufficient to cause instant death. The fact that he survived the operation proved a big surprise to the surgeons.

"Steeplejack" Bill Anderson, after twenty years of climbing to the top of the loftiest towers and most dangerous flagstays in New York, with never a slip nor fall, was killed by a petty little drop of six feet yesterday. It was an odd end to a steeplejack's career. Bill laughed when he tackled the six-foot job. It was to paint a pole on the roof of the Hotel Belmont. The pole base is only a tell man's height above the roof. Bill ran up the short ladder like an ordinary man would run upstairs.

But as he turned to call to an assistant he lost his balance for the first time in his life and plunged head first to the paved roof. He died in a New York hospital ambulance from the results of a fractured skull. "Steeplejack Bill" was 52 years old.

CURSED THE DOCTORS

Unidentified Victim of Morphine Poisoning Found.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 17.—Nearly dead from a dose of morphine taken with suicidal intent, a young man was found at the gate of Garfield park early Friday. In one hand was clutched a loaded revolver and in the other a note addressed to the finder, written on a sheet of memorandum paper. It said: "Don't try to find out who I am."

You will never succeed. I am tired of life. I wish I could kill all the grave diggers (doctors you call them) who have dug my grave and are putting me in it. I only wish I could put a few bullets into the head of the first doctor who attended me. I had $248.27 this morning, and I have tried to spend it all during the day. I want to have one more good time and I don't want any more money to go into the hands of grave diggers. I don't care what you do with me after I am dead."

The note was unsigned. The man's clothing bears the initials "J. L." He had accomplished his money spending, having only $1.27 left, which was found in the would-be suicide's pockets. The man is being cared for at the German hospital.

UNIVERSITY OPENS EARLY

Number of Students Necessitates Opening September 9th.

In past years the University of Missouri has opened for the regular nine months' session about the middle of September. This year, however, the board of curators has decided to devote the week beginning with Monday, the 9th of September, to the opening of school work for the fall and winter, the admission and enrollment of students, the arranging of classes, etc.

There has been in the past much inconvenience caused by the student who straggled in late, some registering as late as six weeks after the date set for the opening. This practice will be curbed, if possible, by the imposition of a penalty of $5 upon each and every student who registers later than the first week of any semester, and by denying credit to those who enter after October 15 in the first semester, and after March 1st in the second semester. Exceptions are made for the students known as "heaters," who obtain credit for their work, and for those who come to take the short courses offered in agriculture each winter.

During this summer reports have been heard that the university would not open until the 17th of September, but these reports are unfounded. Although a six-day schedule of classroom work will still be maintained in large part, as fast as possible the work will be so arranged that only five days of each week will be devoted to classes. When this five-day schedule is perfected Saturday will be left free.

Partly owing to the introduction of this new arrangement, and partly owing to the hundreds of new students who will flock to the university this fall, the opening day has been announced as the 9th of September.

The officers of the university are very desirous of having all prospective students, as well as old ones who are to return to school, take notice of the date of opening, and make special efforts to avoid incurring the penalty of $5 imposed for late registration. Address all inquiries to the president of the university or to Merrill Ottis, publisher of the university, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

BIG CONGRESS OF REDS

ONE OF THE GREATEST ASSEMBLAGES EVER HELD IN EUROPE.

CONGRATULATIONS FOR HAYWOOD

An International Conference of Women Will Be Held in Connection With the Stuttgart Gathering.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Stuttgart, Aug. 17.—One of the greatest assemblages of socialists and labor agitators ever held in Europe is that congregated here today for the International Social Democratic and Trade Union congress.

Delegates are here from all civilized countries, the American representatives including J. G. Phelps Stokes, Dr. George D. Herron and Robert Hunter, the sociological writer.

Resolutions congratulating the American socialists and labor unionists on their victorious legal battle to save William D. Haywood from a "capitalistic conspiracy" have been presented and will be passed by acclamation.

A resolution recommending the annual observance of May day as a great demonstration against "capitalism and economic oppression" will also be passed.

An international conference of women socialists will be held in connection with the congress.

Among the questions to be taken up are woman suffrage, which will be moved strongly by the delegates from all countries, and the establishment of regular communications and a bond of union between the women comrades of all countries.

The international congress has pledged itself to fight for woman suffrage as one of the first demands of socialism.

"STORY HOUR" ON MONDAY

Miss Curran Will Tell Stories About Two Great Artists.

Monday morning Miss Margaret Curran will tell stories about the two great artists, Sir Edwin Landseer and Rosa Bonheur. These two artists are great because of the beautiful animal pictures they have painted. Copies of some of these pictures, with pictures of the artists, are on the bulletin board in the children's room. Miss Curran will tell about the lives of these two artists and the stories of these pictures.

All the children are cordially invited to come Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

The vacation trip pictures on the bulletin board in the delivery hall are of Lake Champlain summer resorts and the trip up the Hudson river.

Gifts of the week are as follows: Magazines from Miss Gertrude Smith. Mrs. Humphrey Ward's "Marcella" from Miss Myrtle Dubba. A juvenile book, "The Silver Ship," from Marie Rush. Two pictures from Mr. Van B. Wisler.

A New Transfer Wagon.

A. M. Mackey, a cab driver, Saturday put in commission a new transfer wagon, neat and up to date in design, which attracted much attention from different people on the streets.

SHE BAKED THE MONEY

Between $30 and $35 Burned in a Cook Stove at Horton.

A rather peculiar misfortune happened at the home of Forest Wilmoth in Horton on Friday of last week, says the Metz, Vernon county, Times.

All of the folks were away with the exception of Miss Ena, and she decided to make a call on one of the neighbors. Fearing robbery she placed a pocketbook containing either $30 or $35 in bills and some silver in the oven of the cook stove for safe keeping.

On her return home she built a hot fire to get supper, forgetting about the money. The result was that the pocketbook and bills were burned almost beyond recognition.
